MOURNING THRONGS DELAY HARDING TRAIN'S PROGRESS

Seems Probable That It Will Be Midnight Before Late President's Body Reaches Washington to be Taken To White House.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Aboard the Harding funeral train Ellwood City, Pa., Aug. 7.—Through the populous industrial and factory regions of Pennsylvania the train bearing the body of the nation's late president moved slowly due to the throngs on both sides of the tracks. At noon today railroad officials had entirely abandoned hope of getting into Washington before ten o'clock tonight and were concentrating their efforts on adhering even to that liberal schedule.

It was even predicted that it might be midnight before the body of the president would be borne into the national capital.

Aboard Harding funeral train en-route to Washington, Aug. 7.—A great wave of American reverence for a dead leader rose up today to retard the speeding of President Harding's funeral train toward the national capital.

The carefully prepared schedule calling for the arrival of the train in Washington early this afternoon has been abandoned. It has been shattered by the overpowering insistence of a saddened people that they be permitted to express their sorrow in the only way possible—standing silent and sorrowful as the remains of the late president move slowly by them.

In a sense it is these reverent people who are running this train today—not the railroad officials. When the crowds are great the train runs at a snail's pace or stops; when people are few the train runs fast.

Calmly accepting the situation as inevitable, despite her intense desire to see the body of the late president lie in the historic East Room of the White House before sundown, Mrs. Harding herself issued instructions that the silent, respectful throngs are not to be disappointed—even if the train does not reach Washington until late tonight.

Early today, as the train swung through President Harding's home state of Ohio, railroad officials estimated that they could make Washington between five and six o'clock this evening. But even they shook their heads. It may be earlier, it may be later. It is, they said, in the hands of the people of Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland. To this extent at least, a saddened people have claimed the dead president as their own.

Those of the dead president's own state, in particular, were not to be denied today. They who had honored him so signally in life were no less concerned that he should, in death, receive that honor befitting one of Ohio's sons who had fought the good fight and died in his country's service.

Throughout the long night and early day, as the train, alternately crawled and flew across the state, Ohio came from its factories and its farms, from its offices and shops, to stand quiet and uncovered beside the tracks over which one of Ohio's most noted sons was being borne back to rest for a time where the remains of two other great Ohioans, Garfield and McKinley, have rested under the dome of the capitol.

The train crossed into Ohio from Indiana shortly after midnight and from then until early day, crowds were to be seen at every station, varying in size according to the place, but never varying in their attitude of mute respect for Warren G. Harding. Sherwood, Defiance, Bryan, Fostoria, Willard, Lodi, Akron, Ravenna and soon down to Youngstown near the Pennsylvania line they came and went as the night progressed.

At Fostoria and Tiffin, the remains of the late president were only little north of grieving Marion. There on Friday, they will be laid away with all the simplicity and lack of ostentation that his simple, kindly heart could have wished.

Never before in the history of America has there been a journey comparable to this caravan of sorrow that for four days has wended its way across the continent. Quite probably there never will be one again.

There have been crowds such as never were before witnessed in this country. No one has tried, no one could estimate with any degree of accuracy the numbers of people who left their work and their homes to do him reverence. They have been endless, enormous and well nigh inconceivable in their size. Their reverence and their desire to show it.

And, everywhere there have been flowers—wreaths, and blankets and bouquets of every bloom known to the horticulturist. The flowers long since have choked to overflowing the narrow space in the rear car where lies the metalled casket. And, today another car was completely filled. At every stop they were placed aboard, beautiful, fragrant, symbolic and mutely expressive of a communal sorrow which could only find its relief in gifts such as these.

Words would not express this community sorrow which extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, even if words had been appropriate, or had there been time to listen to them. Always it was flowers, draped colors, the silent grief for the man whose proudest boast was that he came from Main Street.

Floral offerings that filled the long, black train today came from donors of every description. There were the great wreaths from state governments, great clusters of roses from private gardens; wreaths from posts of the American Legion, from fraternal orders of every kind; and there is one cluster of simple blue corn flowers tossed aboard by a woman in Iowa. There is even a great fiery cross of golden rod, emblazoned by blue flowers with the significant initials K. K. K.

For Mrs. Harding is has been a trip ages long. During most of it she has yielded to the advice of friends and physicians and stayed indoors seeking to regain the strength which fled from her that night on the far west coast when she realized that the president was dead. Occasionally, however, her taut nerves have refused to permit her to lie quietly, and she has arisen, as she did Monday, to sit for hours and watch through slightly lifted blinds the reverence of a great nation flit by her window. Occasionally, too, she has yielded to a desire to be near the casket and she sat and talked with the grave service men who are on guard about the bier.

Her control of herself has been a source of continual amazement to her friends and physicians and she approached the capital confident of her ability to bear up under the great ordeal that lies ahead of her at Washington and at Marion the next three days.

AUTO TRAVEL GAINS ON ASHOKAN BOULEVARD

John B. Hanney, the shoemaker whose shop is next to the post office in West Hurley, who has for several years kept tabs on the number of automobiles that go over the Ashokan Boulevard passing his place, has compiled the following statistics showing the number passing in June and July last year and this year, which show a large gain for 1923. The figures are: June, 1922, 21,780; June, 1923, 31,091; July, 1922, 45,480; July, 1923, 52,775. On Sunday, August 5, he counted 6,000 autos passing his place.

Last winter scarcely a vehicle moved over this road for two months due to the heavy snowdrifts.

JAMES GUILDA'S SKULL FRACTURED

James Guilda, employed on the Hutton brickyard, is in the Benedictine Hospital with a fractured skull, and the police department is searching for Walter Ross, a negro, who is accused of using an iron bar on Guilda's head Monday afternoon. At the hospital this morning it was said that Guilda's condition appeared to be slightly improved but still remains serious. All afternoon Monday Sergeant Phinney and members of the police department searched the woods in the rear of the brickyard, but without success. Ross after administering the blow with the iron bar is said to have run away towards the woods.

M'DOWELL FREED AFTER HEARING

Man Whose Auto Ran Over and Killed Anna Kraus Discharged After Lengthy Police Court Hearing—Other Cases Before Judge Schirick.

After a lengthy hearing in which a number of witnesses testified in police court today, Judge Schirick discharged Henry McDowell, a negro residing at No. 41 Chambers street, whose automobile on August 1, ran over and killed little four-year-old Anna Kraus of Murray street, near the foot of the Chambers street hill. McDowell was represented by Attorney Frank W. Brooks while District Attorney F. G. Traver appeared for The People. The father of the dead child was not in court. The mother is confined to her home by illness.

The affidavit on which McDowell had been held on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree had been made by John Buckman and Leslie Adamson, and among other matters stated that the chauffeur of the car just before hitting the child had glanced aside to wave to some colored folks on the sidewalk. On the witness stand, however, both men stated that they not intended to say that the chauffeur waved to friends on the sidewalk, but that some of the others in the car did so.

Dance at High Falls.

The regular weekly dance at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, will be held this evening as usual. During the evening there will be special attractions, including exhibition dances. There will also be a large assortment of balloons and confetti. Balfe's orchestra of this city will furnish the music.

Oneonta Loses Again.

After breaking even with Larry Doyle's Glens Falls team at Glens Falls on Sunday, the Oneonta Giants dropped another game to the same club at Oneonta on Monday by a 4-3 score. Davis was on the mound for the Giants.

TRAIN OF O. & W. KILLS FARMER

Joseph B. Clearwater of High Falls was accidentally killed Monday afternoon when he was hit by an Ontario and Western train about a quarter of a mile this side of High Falls.

Mr. Clearwater, while working on his farm, was walking from one portion of the field to another which lies across the O. and W. crossing and being hard of hearing did not hear the approaching train. His body was carried about five hundred feet and badly mangled His head was crushed, an arm and both legs severed. Coroner Humiston was called and took charge of the remains.

The funeral will be held from the late home on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, standard time. Interment at Kyserike, N. Y.

REPUBLICAN CITY CAUCUSES TONIGHT

Caucuses will be held this evening in the thirteen wards of this city when delegates will be elected to attend an unofficial Republican city convention to be held at the court house on Monday evening, August 11, for the purpose of designating candidates for mayor and for alderman-at-large. At the caucuses this evening the enrolled voters will express their choice of candidates for nomination for alderman and for supervisor in each ward.

REP'N WOMEN MEET WEDNESDAY

After careful consideration, it has been deemed best to keep on with the preparations for the Republican women voters meeting to be held tomorrow. Although, the gathering will be under the shadow of the great sorrow which has befallen the nation, the highest tribute that can be paid to the memory of Warren G. Harding, is to do those things which he believed would help build up national spirit by taking larger interest in affairs of state and nation.

As the invitations to the morning meeting and luncheon were so widespread, it was impossible to recall them, they will be merely incidents in the business of the day and a short memorial service will be inserted in the program.

The business of good citizenship is as sacred a duty as any, and the fact of the nation's mourning will be kept in mind throughout the proceedings of the day. A great public meeting will be held in the afternoon and all over the county women are planning to be present.

Th speakers of the occasion will be Miss Margaret Hay, whose name is well known by women everywhere as a most popular club woman, whose ability was recognized officially at the first State Republican Convention to which women were eligible as delegates. Mrs. Samuel J. Bens of Utica, prominent in Republican circles in Oneida county, Miss Jennie Van Ness a member of the New Jersey legislature, Mrs. Gordon Norrie, Regional Director of the League of Women Voters of this division of New York state and Mrs. Edward Young of Ulster county.

It is hoped to effect a permanent organization so that Ulster County Republican women can be in line with the other Republican women now organized in state and nation.

The morning session will be held at the Court House at 11 a. m. After lunch the memorial service will be held followed by the afternoon session beginning at 2 p. m. daylight saving time.

AMERICAN LEGION POST ORDERED INTO MOURNING

Members To Cease Work During Harding Funeral.

General Orders No. 1.

August ~~7~~, 1923.

Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, Department of New York, joins with the whole world in heartfelt grief on the death of our president, Warren Gamaliel Harding.

As true soldiers we feel that his command to America would be, "Carry On, Keep our grand and glorious country Free and American." We recognize and will accept this noble duty.

Our late president was in true sympathy and accord with the American Legion's Americanization program and with its endeavors for the disabled soldiers of the World War.

As former members of our country's armed forces, we feel deeply the loss of our commander-in-chief. To show our feeling of grief and respect, therefore, I, Stanley J. Matthews, commander of Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion, do hereby order and direct that all flags of the Post be draped for a period of thirty (30) days. Further that all members of the Post lay aside their work, as a token of reverence and esteem, during the hour which shall hereafter be set for his funeral.

STANLEY J. MATTHEWS,
Commander.

Official:
Eugene B. Carey,
Adjutant.

WHO WINS, MARTIN OR MORRIS BLOCK

The Fight Is Now on Between These Two Political War Horses for the Democratic Nomination for Mayor—Democrats Have Lively Fight on Hand.

Who will be the Democratic nominee for the office of mayor of Kingston? That is the question that is expected to be settled at the unofficial convention to be held at the Kingston Opera House on Thursday.

Morris Block or Alderman William B. Martin will undoubtedly be the choice of the convention with the chances said to be in Alderman Martin's favor.

Chairman James J. Murphy is plainly stumped by the turn in the tide. At his unofficial convention held several nights ago at the city hall his delegates expressed themselves as favoring Morris Block, which was a foregone conclusion.

Since then Democrats who believe that Chairman Murphy is taking too much on his shoulders to dictate who's who in the party ranks are making a hard fight for Alderman Martin to land the nomination.

If Alderman Martin should prove the winner it is likely that his running mate as alderman-at-large will be Alderman Peter Kullman of the Eighth ward.

From what could be learned Alderman Macholdt of the Ninth ward will be left out in the cold at the convention, but will probably be able to control the votes of the delegates in his ward for himself. Just who Alderman Macholdt will throw his three votes to, remains to be seen but they may be a factor in deciding the fight for the nomination between Messrs. Block and Martin.

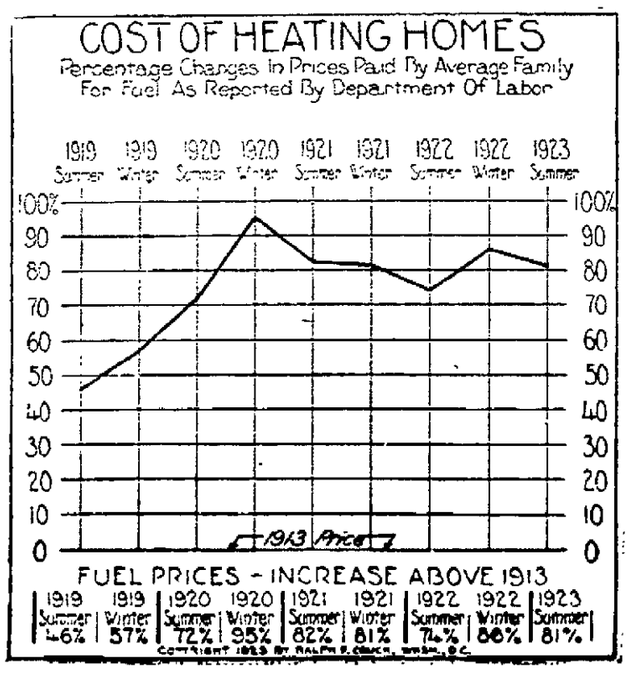
All in all Thursday promises to be a lively day for Chairman Murphy and his fellow Democrats.

Auto Hit Boy.

E. L. Hale of 13 Orchard street reported to the police Monday that he had struck a boy named Roger Saunders of Albany avenue extension, at Broadway and St. James street, but that the lad was not hurt.

BUSINESS DAY by DAY as the Government sees it

PREPARED BY RALPH F. COUCH



PAY TRIBUTE HERE FRIDAY

City Departments to be Closed—Most Stores and Factories Part or All of Day—Arranging Memorial Services in Churches.

Memorial services in honor of every president of the United States from Washington to Roosevelt having been held in the First Dutch Church, and the pastor of the church, the Rev. Mr. Boeve, being absent in the northern portion of the state on his vacation, the consistory of the church, after consultation with a number of its members, have decided if possible to arrange for a union service on Friday at the hour of President Harding's burial at Marion. If the arrangement can be effected, future notice of that fact will be given in The Freeman.

It is understood that the Ministerial Association of this city is going to cooperate with the First Dutch Church in holding memorial services on Friday in honor of the late President Warren G. Harding. The details of the service, which are in the hands of Judge Clearwater, have not been completed as yet but will be announced within the next few days.

There will be a special service at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church Friday at the same time the funeral of President Harding is being held in Marion the hour not having yet been announced. The pastor, the Rev. R. A. Greenwell, will be in charge, coming back from his vacation trip for that purpose. He has telegraphed the Marion Star, formerly owned by President Harding, asking the titles of three of the late president's favorite hymns in order that these songs may be used at the service.

By direction of the Most Rev. Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes of the archdiocese of Roman Catholic Churches of New York, votive Masses will be held in Catholic Churches throughout this city Friday. In the letter received by the pastors of the churches, the head of the Catholic Churches eulogized the president.

Postmaster DeWitt has not yet received instructions from the post-office department in regard to the conduct of postal business on Friday, but the treasury department, which has jurisdiction over the building and custodial force, has stated that the three men in charge of the building are to be released from duty for the day and the building closed so far as possible. Instructions as to half-masting the flag designate the period of mourning for the president as continuing until September 3, and until that time the flag will be raised each morning to half mast and lowered each evening, including Sundays.

Friday at noon all of the city departments at the city hall will close at noon and remain closed the remainder of the day.

If Governor Smith designates Friday as a legal holiday, the banks will close, but otherwise not. Under the state law banks can only close on legal holidays and Sundays.

Most stores will close at least part of the day. Announcements are being held up pending details of the funeral.

Inquiry among the factories shows that they also will close part of the day, in the case of several cigar factories all day.

GOVERNOR SMITH SETS FRIDAY AS HOLIDAY OF MOURNING AND WORSHIP

Calls on People of State to Honor Late President In Worship and Prayer—Governor To Attend Funeral in Washington.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Governor Smith today issued a proclamation calling on the people of New York state to honor the memory of President Harding on Friday, August 10, in worship and prayer.

All state departments, bureaus, boards and commissions are directed to cease work on that day. The governor, who is in New York, will leave for Washington today to attend the president's funeral tomorrow.

The proclamation follows:

"Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, has by proclamation set forth Friday, August 10, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States.

"In accordance therewith, I herewith call upon the people of our state to observe the day in worship and prayer as against all other duties and occupations, and I hereby call upon the heads of all state departments, bureaus, boards and commissions, to declare Friday, August 10, a holiday, to be dedicated to the purpose set forth in the proclamation of the president of the United States."

NATIONAL CAPITAL VEILED IN CREPE

Military Guard of Honor and Highest Officials of Government in Waiting to Escort Body From Train to White House.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The nation's capital awaited its honored dead today.

Less than two months ago, June 20, President and Mrs. Harding, accompanied by a distinguished party of high government officials, rode down Pennsylvania avenue from the White House to Union station to start a long journey to the west and Alaska.

Thousands of happy, eager persons cheered them as the presidential special departed. President Harding was in the most robust health. Though she had just recovered sufficiently from a long, serious illness to permit her to make the trip, Mrs. Harding was radiant with happiness.

As they stood on the rear platform of the special car Superba, waving to the crowd, they seemed the picture of contentment, and as joyful as a young bridal couple leaving on a honeymoon trip.

Today, along the same Pennsylvania avenue shrouded in the black of mourning, thousands stood with bowed heads awaiting the return of the mortal remains of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States.

Washington, from highest officialdom to humblest walks of life, was steeped in grief; weighted with deepest sorrow.

All was silent—the silence of respect for their departed leader.

Flags wafted fretfully at the half staff; church bells tolled quietly, guns boomed a sombre mourning salute. Draperies fluttered from every building along the line of procession.

From Union Station, where cavalry, artillery and infantry, with colors draped, formed a guard of honor; to the capitol, with its massive dome towering sorrowfully to the heavens, down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House, where triumphant processions and grief stricken funeral corteges alike have passed since Washington became the national capital; to the White House, lonely in its setting on a spacious green lawn all was sadness.

On the official delegation, in addition to President Coolidge, were members of the cabinet, Chief Justice Taft, a former president and Senator Cummins of Iowa, president pro tem of the senate. Speaker of the House Gillett, on the funeral train, was designated to act as representative of the lower branch om congress.

The official party will escort the mortal remains of the late President Harding to his old home in the White House.

While the body is in the East Room, where also the remains of the martyred presidents, Lincoln and McKinley, had rested, only Mrs. Harding, President and Mrs. Coolidge and few personal friends will be permitted in the White House. There one wreath will be placed on the bier by the widow, one by the new president and the first lady, one by the Supreme Court Chief Justice Taft. Flowers sent to Mrs. Harding by intimate acquaintances will be received at the mansion.

Tomorrow morning, at a state funeral in the capitol, the national government officially will pay final tribute to the late president. The body will be conveyed to the capitol by an impressive funeral procession.

After services in the rotunda which will be attended only by intimates of the late president, high officials in the government and representatives of foreign nations, the doors of the capitol will be thrown open for a few hours so that the public may be admitted.

Then at six o'clock the body will be carried to the same special train on which Mr. Harding travelled to the west, and on which his lifeless body was returned, and taken to Marion, Ohio, the family home, for burial Friday afternoon.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and invited government officials will leave for Marion on another special train Thursday night, arriving Friday morning and returning shortly after the burial.

MARION FUNERAL SERVICE AT 3 P. M.

Friday at Harding Home—Utmost Simplicity To Mark March to Mausoleum in Cemetery.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 7—A stately mausoleum in Marion cemetery will be the last resting place of President Warren G. Harding, greatest and best loved of Marion's sons, it was learned here today. Following funeral services here Friday, the remains of the chief executive who claimed Marion as his home will be placed in a receiving vault until the mausoleum has been built.

This announcement followed receipt here this morning of word from Dr. Carl Sawyer, son of General C. E. Sawyer, the president's personal physician, who had a conference lasting several hours with Mrs. Harding on the funeral train last night.

On Friday afternoon Rev. C. M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church of which President Harding was for many years a trustee, will preach the funeral sermon at Dr. Harding's home. On the march to the cemetery there will be no military display of any kind, it was announced.

Not even the famous "Black Horse Troop" which escorted the president at his inauguration, will be in the procession, nor will any other military or fraternal organization. With the simplicity he so much loved, and not as the head of the world's greatest nation, will the most distinguished citizen of Marion be laid to rest.

Miss Abigale Harding, a younger sister of the late president, boarded the funeral train at Willard, Ohio, early today, and will accompany the body to Washington.

Mrs. Harding desires the utmost simplicity in the services at Marion. She requested that all friends of the dead president come to the Harding house Thursday evening and Friday morning and view the body.

The funeral services at the Harding home at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon are desired to be "personal but not private" in the words of the late president's secretary, George B. Christian, Jr.

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, Mrs. Harding's personal physician, was agreeably surprised to find the late president's wife bearing up so well under the terrible strain, it was stated. He was in conference with her from the time he boarded the train at Dixon, Ill., until she retired at midnight.

Dr George T. Harding, Jr., brother of the late president, who accompanied Dr. Sawyer to meet the train, remained with the funeral party on the journey to Washington.

With the arrival today of Major General Benson W. Hough, in command of the Ohio national guard, and the receipt of the definite arrangements for the Marion services, preparations went forward smoothly under the direction of Colonel F. P. Lahn, assisted by the Marion Civic Association.

BARNEY AND SPARKY HERE ON WEDNESDAY

The seat sale for "Barney Google and Spark Plug" opened big at the Opera House Monday. This famous pair will be there Wednesday matinee and night. Besides the laugh a minute that is guaranteed, word comes that the chorus is the last word in dainty, dashing Dresden China doll divinities, a fashion plate chorus with massive and gorgeous scenery to set off their charms.

MALINOW'S BODY IS RECOVERED FROM CREEK

The body of George Malinow, aged 17, of Brooklyn, a boarder at George Riggins's summer boarding house at Eddyville, who was drowned in the Rondout creek, Monday morning, was recovered in the afternoon. Coroner W. N. Conner viewed the remains and took charge of the body.

"Grunt, grunt," said Miss Ham.

"Squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"Squeal, squeal," said Pinky's mother.

"Grunt, grunt," said Porky Pig, "what in the world was the reason that you had a Ladies' Meeting of the Pigs today?"

"Yes, squeal, squeal," said Brother Bacon, "what did it mean? All the lady pigs got together and had some sort of a meeting. What in the world did it mean?"

"Grunt, grunt, what did it mean?" asked Sir Percival Pork.

"Squeal, squeal, what did it mean?" asked Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"Grunt, grunt, I cannot understand it either," said Sammy Sausage. "I would like to have it explained to me."

"Squeal, squeal, I wish you would tell us the meaning of all these strange happenings," said Pinky Pig.

"Grunt, grunt, I wish you would. I most certainly wish you would tell us," said Master Pink Pig.

"Go ahead, Ladies, tell us what it all meant. There is no food around just now so we might as well listen," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"That is not a very gentlemanly remark, Grandfather Porky."

"It is certainly not, squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"It is certainly a very rude remark," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"It is most assuredly a decidedly rude remark," said Pinky Pig's mother.

"What have you to say for yourself, Grandfather Porky?" asked Miss Ham.

"What Have You to Say for Yourself."

"Have you any explanation to make for such a rude remark?"

"The best in the world," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"Pray tell it to us then," said Miss Ham.

"Let us have it, squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Tell it to us, grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"We must hear it," said Pinky Pig's mother.

"Well," said Grandfather Porky Pig, "you said my remark was not a very gentlemanly remark. That is true. But I am not a gentleman.

"I am a pig, ha, ha, squeal, squeal, grunt, grunt. That is a good one on you, Miss Ham."

"It's not polite to say that that is a good one on me," said Miss Ham. "But still your explanation of the other remark is a very good one.

"You are not a gentleman. A pig gentleman is very different from a real gentleman."

"I hope so, Miss Ham, I sincerely hope so," said Grandfather Porky.

"But you see," he continued, "it wasn't rude of me, but simply quite a natural remark to tell you that we might as well listen when there was no food around.

"You know, yourself, you wouldn't want to hear any talk if you could eat. At least you wouldn't pay any attention to the talk.

"You know that is true, Miss Ham."

"Yes, yes," grunted Miss Ham. "I agree. I know that is true.

"Well, the reason we had a meeting was because we found some food at the far corner of the pen which in some wonderful way or other had not been discovered by any others. It would have been nice if I had been the only one who had found it."

"It would have been nice if I had been the only one who had found it," said Mrs. Pink Pig, decidedly.

"It would have been nice if I had been the only one who had found it," said Pinky's mother.

"It would have been nice if I had been the only one who had found it," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"I repeat that it would have been nice if I alone had found it, but as there were a number of us who found it a number of us grabbed what we could," said Miss Ham.

"I'm only thankful that there were not more of us. And how it escaped all of you I do not know."

"What a pity it did," Grandfather Porky said. "What a pity."

"You're not very gallant to the ladies to say that, Porky, but then you're a pig. You're a pig!"

Oh, for a new generation of day dreamers. They will not ask whether life is worth living—they will make it so. They will transform the "sordid struggle for existence" into glorious effort to become that which they have admired and loved.

SEASONABLE IDEAS

When cherries are plentiful try putting up some of the following delicious conserve for winter: Stone dark, rich cherries of good flavor—be sure that they are sound and ripe. Cover with a good vinegar not too strong and let stand over night. Drain off the vinegar in the morning and mix the cherries with an equal weight of sugar. Allow to stand where it may be stirred occasionally until the sugar is well dissolved. Cover and set away without sealing.

Green Beans in Salt Brine.—Take tender string beans and cut on the bias or diagonal so that more of the inner surface is exposed, dry after washing and place a layer of salt in a crock, place a layer of beans, then a layer of salt and repeat until the crock is nearly full. Press with a potato masher until enough juice has been extracted to form a brine to cover the beans. Cover with a plate and a weight and keep in a cool place. Soak to remove the excess of salt before using.

Pepper Relish.—Take one dozen sweet green peppers and the same of sweet red peppers, fourteen medium-sized onions, one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of vinegar, one tablespoonful of salt, boil 15 minutes. Seal while hot.

While the wild mushrooms are plentiful be sure to make some—

Mushroom Catsup.—Wipe carefully but do not wash, fresh mushrooms. Put them in layers, well sprinkled with salt, in an earthen dish. Cover with a clean folded cloth and let stand in the warm kitchen for 24 hours. Now wash and strain them through a sieve. To every quart of this liquor add one ounce of peppercorns and boil slowly for half an hour. Then add one-fourth of an ounce of allspice (whole), one-half ounce of ginger root, one dozen whole cloves, three blades of mace and cook 15 minutes. Take from the fire, drain again and bottle. Dip corks in paraffin.

HIGHLAND PASTOR GIVEN VACATION IN ENGLAND

During the five months that the Rev. W. A. Dalton has been pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church he has so endeared himself in the hearts of his people, that they, wishing to show their appreciation, presented him with a purse so generous that he and Mrs. Dalton are to spend their vacation in England visiting Mr. Dalton's parents. They sail Tuesday, August 7th, on the "Mauretania" and expect to leave England for return trip on September 1st on the "Aquitania." Mr. Dayton is a marvelous sermonizer, has splendid delivery and a most pleasing personality which has made for him friends from the entire community who wish for him and Mrs. Dalton a most delightful trip and a safe return.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Aug. 6.—The annual fair and supper will be held in the afternoon and evening of Thursday, August 9. There will be fancy and domestic articles, ice cream, home made candy and other refreshments. There will also be a grab bag. Supper will be served from 6 o'clock, standard time, until all are served. Everybody welcome.

Cool Clothes for Mid-Summer Wear

Wide Range of Hot Weather Apparel That Assures Milady Comfort.

Did you have a thought a while back that you might get through with the summer months without any really thin clothes? And then came the very hot weather. Well, of course, we'll have to take it for granted that your mind has changed. For the next two months at least, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, there will be days and days when only thin, light dresses will suffice, and the important question now is how to make those frocks thin enough and cool enough to be satisfactory and wearable, and still to cast about them that happy crispness of expression that makes them look as comfortable as they really are.

It is all right to feel cool, but you don't want to look dowdy at the same time, and that is the effect that so many thin summer things are apt to cast about them in spite of themselves. They look well enough in the hand, or on the hangers, or on the youthful models in the smart shops, but take them to your own boudoir and put them on and there is sometimes the most bitter disappointment awaiting you. You see that they are not right at all—that you had not judged your summer expression with sufficient clarity, and that you turn out to be, in the hot weather regalia, something that looks totally foreign to your own feeling and to the appearance that you are accustomed to throw out into the world.

Now, all this means that you must study your hot-weather self with as much care and forethought as you usually spend upon your cold or even medium-weather self. You must realize that your temperament changes subtly, and that you do not have the same things to give to a summer costume as you have ready to supply to a winter one. You may have better ones for summer, or worse ones, but, in all events, they need especial attention when it comes to surrounding them with clothes. You must take in the exigencies of the case, conforming your thoughts and your appearance to the state of the weather, which, after all, you cannot escape, unless you flee to Alaska, which it is the privilege of very few of us to do.

Use for Electric Iron.

You will raise all sorts of complaints about the mussableness of summer materials. Yes, that is their great drawback, but, then, they have so many and various advantages that you must needs face the electric iron as a part of your summer equipment and conform your views and opinions to that condition of affairs. A little pressing is a small price to pay for comparative comfort and coolness when the days take on that state of temperature which is bound to oppress you at every turn whether your mind is set against the contingency or not.

Now, if you are in the country, thin summer things are a matter of course. Every one is doing them and you are meeting with people dressed as you are at every turn of the road. This is particularly true of vacations, when one can afford to look around for comfortable spots, and for places that are devoted to the wearing of certain clothes. You will find frocks already designed and made for this emergency and after all it is no emergency at all, but a certain form of happening in a certain sort of woman's life. There are morning clothes and garden clothes and evening clothes—all in the simplest varieties and designs all constituted to make you look your best when surrounded by the open spaces of the country. These costumes are more or less simple, depending upon your taste and the kind of society in which you mix. Then there are the clothes of the woman who is confined to the city and who cannot leave there. They are not so simple, because of the many restrictions. But, then they all are beautiful when they are well done, and they all manage to fit into the scheme of things when it comes to the last analysis.

The materials this season are better and more durable than they have been for some time past. When you come to look into the subject you will find that they possess certain wearable qualities which are not nearly so questionable as they have been heretofore. They wash well and press well. They are dyed so perfectly that they keep their color. They are woven with a certain amount of resistance so that they do not fall to pieces at the first breath, and they manage to keep their shapes and contour through many emergencies.

Must Watch the Details.

The big point is how to make them up so that they will look smart and be as unmussable as it is possible for them to be. That is a simple enough process, only you must watch the details and let no intricacy of workmanship escape your attention. Once you decide upon the thing that is your style and type, it may perhaps be easier to carry it out at home with the help of your trusted seamstress. However, there are wonderful values to be had in the way of ready-made clothes this season. You can have two dresses for last year's one if you do not insist upon going into fields that are made only for millionaires.

Take the organdie dress, for instance. This stuff costs much less than formerly, and a very good quality, too—good enough, certainly, to last through the washings of a season. And who wants to carry a summer dress over to a second year? The more expensive organdies may suit you better, but they are no better for a season's wear, and the casual observer cannot tell the difference in the quality. You can make it up then with no trimming—simply with applications of tucks or frills of its own material—and you can see that it, with its sash and collar of the same material, turns out to be the smartest of frocks to be seen about the neighborhood. The becomingness of the color chosen is the chief concern; and then the lines should suit your own particular type of figure.

Fichus are extremely smart this season, and they certainly have a peculiar quality of making a dress a becoming matter as added to any wardrobe. They are nicest when they are made from white organdie. They can then be worn with different sorts of frocks, from ginghams to dotted swisses, with the latter especially managing to look their best. It can be a large and all-embracing fichu or it can be a slim and slender one. And, by the same token, it can be ruffled on its edge or left plain, according to your own standard of taste or the demands of the design of your gown and the portion of the day that it is meant to grace. Fichus are sometimes made of net or of all-over patterns of lace.

1830 Styles in Fashion.

Now the 1830 styles that have crept into fashion during the last season have a fine opportunity to display their airs and graces when it comes to thin summer materials. All of the full and drooping lines have an especial opportunity to show off the gracefulness of their designs when it comes to thinner materials. The era of dress fairly calls for laces and ruffles and wide, deep berthas of lace—all those flounces and flutings which made the women of that era attractive are now in the extreme of good taste and style. They seem to fit with thin materials even better than they do with thicker and more wintry ones, and so those women who wish to be appealing and beautiful in that particular way will find the road all prepared for them.

One of these dresses has wide flouncing of lace about the bottom of the skirt and the cross lines of lace applied above that point. The dress is made of pale mauve chiffon and the lace is dyed to match, so that, with little handworkings of pink it becomes the prettiest sort of a summer frock with every point of coolness about its making and every line of dignity and charm about its design.

The hat worn with this frock is so suitable that it is beautiful, though it has no pretension to modern style about it other than the widely drooping brim that is in complete accord with the downward tending lines of the frock's design.

KEEP MEN EMPLOYED.

While the Republican party has always tried to keep down the cost of living, that has not been its first effort. To keep all the people employed has been one of the fundamental principles of Republicanism. Whether the cost of living be high or low is of little interest to men who are out of jobs, for they haven't the money to pay the cost in either event. Under the Republican policy of "buy it Made-in-America," our own industries are built up and jobs are provided for American workmen. When there is work for every man, wages are certain to be good, for it is a lack of work that brings wages down. With steady work and good wages, people may growl a lot over the cost of living, but they are immeasurably better off than they would be with low cost of living and no work and no wages.

There you have a statement of one Republican policy that differs from the Democratic. Our Democratic friends are always concerned for the welfare of the consumer—they want him to buy where he can buy the cheapest, in America or elsewhere. Republicans are concerned for the welfare of the producer. That is why the Republican Congress passed the bill reviving the War Finance Corporation for the aid of farmers, and passed the bill a second time after President Wilson had vetoed it. While the bill did not bring everything that the farmers desired, it did save them from far worse conditions. But for the Republican tariff law, we would now be flooded with Canadian grain and with European manufactured goods. Our mills would be closed and our people would have a very small purchasing power. The plight of the farmer is bad, but it is immeasurably better than it would be if our people were buying cheap products of Europe and letting our own products go without any market at all. The mechanics of the cities are getting high wages, and therefore, they are liberal buyers of all classes of American goods. This situation is due in large degree to the Republican policy of looking after the welfare of the producer, thus enabling him to be a buyer for consumption.

OVERWORKING THE PRESIDENT

The death of President Harding has been followed by editorial discussions of the causes of his breakdown and the danger of long, exacting Presidential tours. It seems to be generally agreed that his illness was brought on, not by his previous burden of care in Washington, but by the drain on his vitality involved in too much physical exertion as well as broken sleep and continued speechmaking during his trip to Alaska. Everywhere the people wanted to see and give the President a good time, and with characteristic amiable desire to please he endeavored to carry out all programs. He did not rival President Roosevelt in the matter of physical stunts, but he made speeches night and day, shook hands by the hour, kissed innumerable babies, drove both a tractor and an electric locomotive, and took rough horseback rides that called for mountain climbing and plunging into deep fords.

Altogether it was too much for a tired man of 58. No man is wise to attempt to play the boy or the athletic youth after forty-five or fifty. Mr. Roosevelt did it more successfully than most men on account of his long habit of strenuous physical exertion. Being younger, he could better afford physical strain than Mr. Harding, but even he paid the penalty. Over effort is said to have caused his final collapse. Even while President he is said to have lost an eye in boxing with a trainer, the fact being kept secret until he was out of office and not being widely known until his death. A President usually is beyond the prime of physical vigor when he takes office and needs to be careful to conserve his powers. This ought to be remembered by a public too prone to make demands on the very bodily strength of the Chief Executive.

A "soul clinic" established by St. Mark's Church, New York, is said to attract hundreds of patients. The healing of ailing souls by means of religion is as old as Christianity, but to undertake to accomplish it at set hours in a "clinic" is very modern indeed.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Someone told me nightshade berries are not poisonous if cooked. Is this so?

2. Does a hen in the wild state cackle after laying an egg? If so, why doesn't this advertise the whereabouts of the egg to snakes, or any egg-stealers?

3. Is lynx fur black?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What sort of nest does the hermit thrush build?

A style of nest corresponding to what thrushes in general build, a rather bulky cup-shaped structure, thatched on the outside with stems, bits of moss, leaves, etc. and with a smooth inner lining of pine needles, fine rootlets, or whatever substances it finds to give a more finishehd surface. Between these inner and outer coatings is a sort of interlining or wall of mud on punky wood bits.

2. What is the biggest crocodile?

If you mean what species has the biggest individuals, the Indian Gavial is supposed to be the giant, a very large specimen measuring 30 feet. Found in northern India. The Madagascar crocodile occasionally reaches 30 feet. This is fully twice as long as an average large American crocodile and almost twice as long as a big American alligator.

3. Do alligators breathe under water?

No, they are reptiles, and reptiles breathe air only. The Crocodilia have a valved arrangement for both nostrils and ears which closes when the creature submerges, keeping water out and air in. They also have a special muscle in the throat that prevents water from rushing down the wind pipe when they have prey in their jaws under water.

MAKE HENS EAT MASH TO LAY SUMMER EGGS

Profits from poultry in New York state are largely determined, it is pointed out by the state agricultural college at Ithaca, by the condition of the flock during the summer. Successful poultrymen find it necessary to encourage the hens to eat mash so they can produce eggs. This is accomplished by reducing the amount of scratch grain and feeding mash from hoppers.

Figures from the college show that the best practice is to feed about one quart of scratch grain in the morning and four in the evening to every hundred hens through August, reducing the evening feeding to three quarts during September and October.

The Cornell grain formula is 500 pounds cracked corn, 200 pounds barley, 200 pounds wheat, 100 pounds heavy oats. Cornell mash is made of 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds wheat middlings, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds ground oats or ground barley, 100 pounds meat scrap, and 3 pounds salt.

WINTER'S WIFE AND A CHILD HURT IN COLLISION

Editor, The Freeman:

I would like to have the statement corrected in last night's Freeman. Charles Bouchard ran into Jerry Winter's new car on Delaware avenue and Abruyn street instead of Abruyn street and Strand, hit him on the left hand side of the car and smashed Winter's car up so it had to be towed to the garage for repairs. In the car were his wife and little Virginia Williams who had her head cut open, and his wife was bruised about the body. Dr. Basten gave first aid. Dr. Eastman is the attending physician. This is a true statement.

Beecher a Horticulturist.

Henry Ward Beecher, the celebrated American clergyman and orator, at one time had considerable fame as an authority on matters bearing on that subject in the pioneer days of western horticulture. He was editor of the Western Farmer and Gardener, and a selection of his contributions were printed in 1859 as a book of nearly 450 pages, entitled "Plain and Pleasant Talk About Fruits, Flowers and Farming." A second edition was published in 1874—a book of nearly 500 pages, containing also articles written for the New York Ledger.

These papers have a higher literary value than is usual in horticultural writings, and are still entertaining and suggestive, says the Detroit News. They are said to have done much to spread the taste for country life and gardening.

Horticultural Hints

Blackberry Plants Need Cultivation in Summer

Blackberry plants should be kept cultivated during the entire summer and where they are kept cultivated the sprouts will be kept down in the middle of the row.

If you have not already begun to top the young shoots or canes of the blackberry plants you should do so when they reach a height of two and a half or three feet. This can be done readily by going through the patch and pinching out the tops while the sprouts are young and tender. It will be necessary to go through the patch several times during the summer in order to pinch the plants back when they have reached the proper height.

This pinching back will cause the plants to branch and be stocky, better able to resist the winds, and will increase the fruiting wood for another year.

The canes which bear the fruit any one season die at the close of the harvest. The time to remove these old canes depends on the location or exposure of the planting. Ordinarily the recommendations are to remove the old canes at the end of harvest, but practice has demonstrated that in exposed windy localities the old canes protect the young tender shoots from injury by the wind. In cases other than this, remove the old canes at the close of harvest.—By D. C. Mooring, Extension Horticulturist, Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Spray for Cherry Slugs With Arsenate of Lead

The eggs from which the slugs that infest the cherry and plum leaves hatch are deposited by a black four-winged fly about as large as a common house fly. The eggs are laid one in a place and are then thrust just beneath the epidermis of the leaf, making a pimple about the size of a small pinhead.

The slugs are easily destroyed by spraying with arsenate of lead, or white hellebore, as soon as they begin to appear. If there are cherries I would not advise using the arsenate of lead late in the season, on account of the danger of poisoning those who eat the fruit. The white hellebore, lightly dusted over the leaves, or put in water in the proportion of an ounce to 3 gallons, and sprayed on the leaves, will kill the slugs and not poison those who eat the cherries.

The slugs may also be killed by spraying with Black-Leaf 40, a good teaspoonful to a gallon of water, or a pint in 100 gallons.—C. P. Gillette, Colorado State Entomologist.

Fourth Spray Helps in Controlling Apple Pest

R. S. Mackintosh, specialist in horticulture for the agricultural extension division of Minnesota university, sends out notice that the fourth spray to assist in controlling the apple maggot should be applied about July 20.

As the adult flies do not all appear at the same time, it is necessary to keep the foliage covered with poison. Ordinarily it is advisable, says Mr. Mackintosh, to leave a few trees unsprayed in order to check up results, but with the apple maggot it is safer to spray all the trees. If there is sufficient arsenate of lead present, the insects are killed.

Minnesota orchardists are showing a preference for the standard liquid lime sulphur, says Mr. Mackintosh. "One of our orchardists used the liquid last season while his neighbors used the dry," he says, "but they lost so much from the scab that this year they are using the liquid. It has been found necessary in Michigan orchards to use five or six pounds of the dry per 50 gallons of water to equal the liquid."

Proper Thinning Tends to Improve Apple Crop

Proper thinning reduces the number, but the remaining fruit becomes so much larger in size that the yield is practically as much. Besides this the fruit is nearly all marketable at a good price.

Thin apples when about one inch in diameter, removing all apples at the ends of branches. Where two or more apples are attached to the same fruit spur, only the best one should be left. If the spurs are too close together, remove all the apples from some of them, so that the fruit is five, six and sometimes eight inches apart. Always remove the smallest and most inferior fruit.

Some do all the thinning by hand, twisting the apples off backward, being careful not to injure the one that remains. This tedious job is aided by a pair of thinning shears, especially when the fruit is thick, as the apples can be clipped off without disturbing others.

Potatoes Help Trees.

If you can possibly spare them, put a few potatoes under each tree around the roots. The rotting potatoes furnish moisture and some plant food. If they grow, let them, but do not attempt to dig the potatoes.

Control Fire Blight.

Fire blight is easier to control than most people believe, only it requires the utmost vigilance and careful watching, together with the prompt removal of all blighted limbs as soon as they appear.

Fact Beyond Dispute.

I say that the very fact that we are capable of such things as these is evidence of our kinship with something greater than earthly existence can either exhaust or complete.—Rev. R. J. Campbell.

PEACHES ARE FINE FOR CANNING

Rightly Put Up, They Will Keep for Two Years—Recipes From Cornell Home Scientists.

Declaring that peaches are among the most desirable of all fruits to can at home, and that they are invaluable for the winter months, the home scientists at Cornell gave out this week several recipes for canning which they say are excellent. There is little danger, say the Cornell cooks, of putting up too many peaches, as they will keep for two years.

Sound freestone peaches, uniform in size, should be used for canning, and the soft, broken ones should be used for marmalade and conserve. If possible, peaches should be canned on the same day they are picked.

Dip the peaches into boiling water and then into cold water to remove the skins. If it is necessary to allow the peaches to stand for some time before canning, cover them with a salt solution of a teaspoon of salt to one quart of cold water to prevent discoloration.

They should be drained just before they are used. The peaches may be canned whole by the open-kettle method; or for either method they may be sliced or cut in halves and the stones removed.

Make a syrup using from ½ to ¾ cup of sugar to each cup of water and boil it for from three to five minutes. Allow about 1 cup of syrup and 1 cracked peach pit for each quart jar of peaches.

For the cold pack method, pack the peaches in halves in overlapping layers with the rounded side uppermost and the blossom end facing the glass, or use sliced peaches. Fill each jar with hot syrup and adjust the rubber and cover, and the upper clamp, thus partly sealing the jar. Place the jars on a rack in a hot-water bath that covers the tops to a depth of one inch. Bring the water to the boiling point, and boil the jars for 20 minutes. Remove the jars, seal them, and invert them to cool.

In the open kettle method, cook the peaches in the syrup until they are tender; then, with a clean spoon slip them carefully into a jar that has been thoroughly cleaned by being boiled for 20 minutes, and fill the jar to overflowing with syrup. Adjust the rubber, which has been cleaned with the jar. Seal the jars immediately, and invert to cool.

Grape Juice Stayed Typhoid.

The grape is the oldest fruit known to history. It flourished on the hillside of Galilee, and in lands antedating Judea it was cultivated. No man knows its first beginnings. The theory of Doctor Mayo is that the skin-clad "doctor" of antiquity conceived the happy notion that the juice of the grape, squeezed out into a rude vessel, might make a satisfactory substitute for polluted water. No sooner thought than done. Grape juice was imbibed instead of aqua impura. Presto! the ravages of typhoid were stayed. Grape juice had won its championship as the first substitute for impure water.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Billy's Little Hint.

Billy had a new suit, and the most wonderful thing about it was that there were pockets in the trousers; something he had never had before. He came running to show me how attractive they were. After showing them to me, he said, "'N they'll hold anything. They haven't anything in them now, but they'll hold pennies, nickels, dimes, or anything." Needless to say, that I saw to it that he had something in the pockets.—Chicago Tribune.

Substitute for Cork.

Notwithstanding all the achievements in practical science there are some indispensable materials, the making of which is still nature's secret and for which no entirely successful substitute has been found. Among these substances is cork. It is possible, however, that nature herself, in this case, offers us a substitute in the wood of a tree growing on the east coast of Lake Tchad, in Africa, which is of even less specific gravity than cork.

Kelvinator
Electric Refrigeration for the Home

Special Exhibit Starting Monday

Beginning Monday, August 6th, and continuing during the week, Stock & Cordts will give a Special Exhibition of the famous KELVINATOR Electric Refrigeration for the home. At least, make it a point to see the Window Display, which will feature a complete outfit, being in a large measure, self-explanatory.

KELVINATOR DOES AWAY WITH THE FUSS AND MUSS OF ICE REFRIGERATION

Kelvinator eliminates the ice man, with his inconvenient hours and his dripping, dirty ice. Kelvinator is so much more efficient than ice THERE IS LITERALLY NO COMPARISON.

In the first place, Kelvinator fits rights into the ice chamber of the refrigerator box you now have. It supplies absolutely DRY COLD—cold which is several degrees lower than ice temperature.

Kelvinator is perfectly clean, very inexpensive to run and it is always there.

You may go away for several days, leaving the refrigerator box full of food and on your return be sure to find your meat and vegetables perfectly fresh and edible. Kelvinator is so efficient that it has kept MILK SWEET FOR TWO WEEKS. It has actually kept oranges sound for a year.

Resolve NOW to do away with ice. Come to Stock & Cordts—see Kelvinator in operation—and get the facts and figures.

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year?

To rid the pesky bedbug, you readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones.

P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies, that the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, flies and moths is to use the new discovery Pesky Destroyer Odorless "P. D. Q."

A 35c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, flies and moths and at the same time destroy their eggs.

Impossible for them to exist where P. D. Q. is properly used. Free a patent sprayer in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get-at places and save the juice.

P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, no mess or dust, does not rot or harm the bedding.

P. D. Q. for family use 35c. Hospital size $3.50 makes five gallons. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Jimlus

When a man with but a single idea gets where he is going he hasn't seen much on the trip.

If we would spend on preventing ills,
As much as we do on the milliner's bills,
Or in our search for different thrills,
We'd seldom need doctors.

Small boy, looking at trunk on rear of the new sport model: 22. "Hully gee, it must take a lot of tools to keep that buncha junk rolling."

Warning: Medical paper says round shoulders come from kissing too many short girls.

Premier at Prague has had a monkey gland installed and now he will always be known as the gland old man of Czecho Slovakia.

"Grand slam" describes the action of your wife's bedroom door when you criticise the way she played that last hand.

There always is a brighter side. Popular songs seldom remain popular very long.

Politicians only run down their opponents. Motorists are not so particular—they run everybody down.

A man can't expect to be treated as an equal by his fellow men when he knows the difference between crepe de chine and organdie.

The Ostrich.

The ostrich is an oversize chicken which furnishes plumes for women's hat and pokes its head into the sand, when, for reasons of its own, it wishes to hide. If there is anything more foolish than an astrich it is a girl who wears a dime's worth of rouge on each cheek and imagines people are admiring her when they turn around to look.

The ostrich's wife is a feminist. Her husband has to hatch the eggs and bring up the children while she is out gallivanting around, heaven knows where. The ostrich also is a great kicker, although he neither burns gas, uses a telephone nor rides on street cars. So what has he got to kick about, we'd like to know? When a he ostrich isn't hatching out eggs, he is busy raising plumes to put on somebody's wife's hat. So, between the two, his time is pretty well taken up.

CALLAN NOT TO BE A CANDIDATE

For Re-election as State Commander of Legion—Many Others Are Mentioned.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Saratoga Springs, Aug. 6.—In spite of insistent pleas of former service men throughout New York state to reconsider a decision to retire, Albert S. Callan of Chatham, commander of the American Legion, Department of New York, today announced he would not be a candidate for re-election at the Fifth Annual Convention of that body to be held in Saratoga Springs on September 13, 14, 15.

"Not unmindful of the honor of representing a vast majority of the former service men of New York," said Commander Callan, "I am opposed to long tenures of office believing that the office of commander should be changed from time to time so as to have the different sections of the state represented. I, therefore, shall not be a candidate for re-election or permit my name to go before the convention as such."

Retirement of Commander Callan means that a stiff fight will be waged in the convention to elect a successor, thereby increasing the interest for posts throughout the state who are seeking recognition through the selection of a member for one of the state posts.

Supporters of First Vice Commander C. W. A. Cannon of Richmond Hill, Queens county, have already started an active canvass for the commandership. To date indorsements have been obtained from Queens, Nassau and Greene counties for this candidate with indications that other indorsements will follow rapidly as soon as delegates are chosen.

Westchester county men are making a drive in behalf of that county's commander, Alfred W. Ely of Tarrytown while another candidate from that section is John G. Spafford of New York county.

To date the only real "upstate man" mentioned as a possible candidate is D. B. Ryan of Albion, chairman of the Eighth Judicial District, an important section from the standpoint of the legion.

Other candidates are expected to be thrust into the field but it is admitted that the final choice will be, in all likelihood, one of the four men mentioned.

ULLER AND M'GEE ARE SECRETED

d by U. S. Officers After "Bucketshop" Confession While Politicians and Attorneys Clamor to See Them—Big Personages Believed Involved.

Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 7.—William Hayrd, United States district attorey, today promises to write a new apter of "frenzied finance."

Armed with what he says is a full nfession by Edward M. Fuller and illiam F. McGee, partners in the m of E. M. Fuller & Company, nvicted Wall Street bucket shop erators, Col. Hayward announced mself prepared to tell how mbs" from Broadway to Maine ve been victimized out of billion dollars the Institute of onomics, Washington, has esti- ted as the "loot of stock swin- ers," in the last 12 months.

Hayward said this morning that ller and McGee, aided by a group higher-ups believed to be social, litical and financial leaders of the tropolis, alone secured $5,000,- 0 of this sum, victimizing "lambs" m New York to San Francisco."

"At this time the government es not believe the ends of justice uld be served in telling the in- e story of one of the greatest of ll streets swindles," Colonel Hayrd said today. "However, the nfession of Fuller and McGee will made public and the whole story d as a warning to investors."

Fuller and McGee were arrested en their brokerage firm failed veral months ago. Four thousand vestors, from coast to coast, were the company's books. The partrs were confined in Ludlow street l, New York. They entered a a of guilty to charges of operata bucket-shop, but refused to n over the records demanded by e United States district court, for e aid of the federal receiver. For is Federal Judge Goddard held em in contempt of court.

While they were in jail, McGee's eas wife, the beautiful Louise ody, was in Paris. She returned me last week in a $1,800 suite oard a trans-Atlantic liner.

On the same day, Colonel Hayrd, who himself had hurried back m Europe, ordered the two kers transferred from Ludlow ee jail to the military prison on vernor's Island, in New York Bay. yward today refused to make own the reasons for this action.

While in the military prison, lonel Hayward said today, he conred with the two "brokers" who eed to tell all.

"Under secrecy we removed the soners from their island prison d have them in a secret place toy," Hayward said. "They are der guard of secret service men d United States Marshal Hecht. e prisoners have signed complete nfessions, telling of their operans."

While Colonel Hayward held the n in their present prison politins and attorneys stormed the ors of the military jail demandto see the two men. It was expec- Fuller and McGee would be held der cover until Hayward can pret them before a federal grand y, after which, he said today, confessions would be made pub-

Son, 40, Shot Stepmother Who Treated Him Like Boy

"I'm forty years old, but she treated me like a boy. She nagged me all my life. I killed her, and I'm satisfied with my fate," said Julius Kessler in court at Buffalo, N. Y.

Kessler was sentenced to die after he confessed shooting his sixty-year-old stepmother, Mrs. Pauline Kessler.

"She abused me if I didn't get home from work on time. She flew in a rage when I wouldn't scrub the floors. Then she threatened to have me arrested, and I rebelled," Kessler explained.

HALF WILD CHILDREN FLEE FROM FIRST "MOVIE" TRAIN

Spectacle of Express Rushing at Them Across Screen Sends Them Scurrying

Glasgow, Scotland.—The first movie show ever witnessed by peasant children on the lonely island of St. Kilda, west of Scotland, so terrified them that they stampeded from the schoolroom.

The film was being exhibited in the school, but the exhibition was held up when the room was vacated so abruptly. The children sought safety on the hillsides.

St. Kilda, isolated during several months of the year by the stormy Atlantic, is inhabited by a semi-civilized people. A party of visitors, thinking to give the natives a treat, arranged a moving picture entertainment.

The young folks were out in full force despite the warning of their elders. The audience sat unmoved through a picture of a football match and their hosts were elated at their spellbound interest.

Then an express train rushed at the audience across the screen, and the youngsters screamed and fled. They ignored the assurances of the operator that the train was not real, so the performance was called off.

Pet Hen and Mistress Buried in Same Coffin

Washington.—The true story of how a pet hen recently was buried in the same coffin in nearby Virginia with the body of a woman who owned the fowl came to light when one of the eyewitnesses related the circumstances in Washington recently.

A few days before the woman's death she requested that her pet hen be chloroformed and buried in the same casket with her. Having respect for the woman's request, although it was admittedly odd and unusual, friends procured a quantity of chloroform and administered the poison in the usual manner at the same time placing the hen in a box, where it was to be kept until the day of the funeral.

The following morning, however, it was found the poison had no effect on the egg-layer and another dose was administered with no better results. Finally the day of the funeral arrived, and the undertaker said he could "turn the trick" in short order, so accordingly administered some formaldehyde. But even at that the hen did not go to her eternal scratching ground.

How to comply with the woman's request was becoming quite baffling, and as relatives and friends were gathering for the last rites the undertaker solemnly carried the hen to the woodhouse, where the hen was prepared for its last sleep by chopping off its head with an ax.

Vet With Broken Neck Boasts as "Luckiest Man"

San Antonio, Tex.—His neck broken by a dive into the municipal pool at San Pedro park, yet alive, the broken vertebrae held firmly in a plaster cast, R. L. ("Jack") Perry, thirty-three-year-old World war veteran, has decided that he is the luckiest man in the world.

Jerry served in the World war with the sixty-sixth infantry, Rainbow division. He was gassed three times and wounded seven times during the war and now is on the government disabled list, drawing compensation.

Coming to San Antonio for the benefit of his lungs, which were weakened by the gassing, Perry was run over by an automobile soon after his arrival. His left leg was fractured above the knee.

Not quite a year ago he was working at Camp Travis on some construction when a steel girder fell, striking Perry a glancing blow, but with sufficient force to fracture his left arm.

On Christmas day, 1922, the house of a neighbor on West Salinas street caught fire and while waiting for the department to arrive Perry climbed on the roof and aided in pouring water on the flames. The dense smoke was too much for his lungs, weakened by gas, and he was overcome. Falling from the roof, he was badly knocked out for a time.

Kills Father for Attack on Wife.

Goldsboro, N. C.—Pleading that he killed his father because the latter attacked his daughter-in-law, Dewey Smith is on trial for his life. Smith declared that his father attacked Mrs. Smith, only a young woman, four times. The father is seventy years of age.

Defective Vision Widespread.

It is stated that out of 42,000,000 persons gainfully employed in the United States over 25,000,000 are handicapped by defective vision resulting from eyestrain. Correct lighting methods would do much to improve this appalling condition.

GARDINER TEAM ISN'T NAPPING

Won't Have That Horseshoe Pitching Trophy Taken Away From Home Town if Practice Will Prevent—Ball Teams Being Lined Up for County Picnic.

Interest in the second annual horseshoe pitching contest that will be held at the County picnic at Camp Wallkill on August 18th is growing every day.

"Joe Deyo," Farm Bureau chairman at Gardiner has arranged a practice court on the farm of Stanley Gray and three nights a week the Gardiner team is practicing. They are determined to keep the Chamber of Commerce cup at Gardiner in spite of the formidable array of horseshoe pitchers entered by the Rotary Club.

The Rotary Club entries are A. L. Harder, E. M. Hicks, Frank Thompson and Ed Derrenbacher. No information can be obtained as to whether the Rotary Club men are doing any practice work or whether they are just going into the tournament "on faith."

The rules of the horseshoe pitching contest are given below:

Horseshoe Pitching Contest Rules.

Below are printed the official rules governing the game. Every contestant entering the contest should become familiar with them.

Contestants are not limited to Farm Bureau members but the local Farm Bureau committee of each community will be the judge of what team is to represent that community in the contest, and where there are a number of local teams from one community wishing to enter, it is possible that a local contest may have to be pitched off before the representative team can be announced.

These rules, adopted by the National League of Horseshoe and Quoit Pitchers, will be used at the Ulster County Championship tournament to be held in connection with the Farm and Home Bureau picnic at Camp Wallkill, Saturday, August 18th, 1923.

Section I.

1. The standard distance shall be 40 feet between the pegs.

2. The ground shall be as level as possible. In indoor pitching, contestants will pitch into boxes. The boxes not to exceed 6 inches in height.

3. The pitcher's box shall extend 3 feet on either side to the rear and in front of the peg. The ground therein shall consist of clay, except in those states that have a sandy soil; if clay, it shall be well dampened and dug up to a depth of 7 inches; if sand, it shall be well dampened and tramped down. A contestant, when pitching, may stand anywhere inside the pitcher's box. Any pitcher delivering a shoe outside the pitcher's box shall forfeit the value of that pitch

4. The pegs shall be of iron, one inch in diameter, perpendicular, extending eight (8) inches above the ground and inclined one inch toward the opposite peg.

Section II.

1. At the beginning of the game the contestants shall toss a coin for first pitch, the winner to have his choice of first or follow.

Section III.

1. The shoes to be used must not exceed 7½ inches in length or 7 inches in width. No toe or heel calks shall exceed 3½ inches inside measurement; no shoe shall exceed 2 pounds or 8 oz. (2½ lbs.) in weight.

Section IV.

1. In four handed game, partners shall have the right to coach each other.

2. Those not in the game are forbidden to coach, molest or in any way interfere with a pitcher.

Section V.

1. No contestant shall walk across to the other peg and examine the position of the shoes before making either his first or final pitch. All contestants must pitch both shoes from the pitching box into the opposite pitching box, or forfeit a point to his opponent.

Section VI.

1. Wrapping the fingers with tape is allowed.

Section VII.

1. A regulation game shall consist of 50 points, and the contestant first scoring this number shall be declared the winner.

2. The most points a contestant can score in a single game is 50. A pitcher gets credit for only the necessary points required to bring his total up to 50, but all ringers are credited to him.

3. In all national tournaments regulation 50 point games shall be pitched. Each contestant shall pitch other contestant one game. The contestant winning the greatest number of games shall be declared the winner.

4. A shoe that does not remain within 8 inches of the peg shall not be counted.

5. The closet shoe to the peg shall score 1 point. If both shoes are closer than either of an opponent's they shall score 2 points.

6. A ringer shall score 3 points. To be a ringer a shoe must encircle the peg far enough to allow a straight rule to touch both calks and clear the peg.

7. Two ringers is the highest score a pitcher can make and shall count 6 points.

8. All equals shall be counted as ties. That is, if both contestants have one shoe each equal distance from the peg, or against it, or ringers, they are tied, and the next closest shoe counts.

9 If one contestant should have two ringers, and the other one, the pitcher having the two ringers shall score 3 points.

10. In case of a tie on all four shoes, such as four ringers, or four shoes each 1 inch from the peg, no score shall be recorded and the contestant who pitched the last shall be awarded the lead.

11. Calipers shall be used for all necessary measurements.

12. In case of any dispute, or where the rules do not specifically cover a disputed point, than a referee or a committee in charge shall have full and final jurisdiction.

Roy Sutliff, one of the representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, has taken it upon himself to arrange for a real ball game. He has arranged for the Gardiner team to play a picked team from Kingston and everything points to an interesting game.

ORPHEUM THEATRE REOPENS AUG. 23

The Orpheum Theater will open for the season on Thursday, August 23, with a big feature vaudeville show and a late paramount picture. The same show will be held Friday and Saturday following. There have been a number of improvements made to the theater, the inside and outside have been painted, a new concrete floor in the basement, the lavatories changed, new ventilation system, the stage and dressing rooms repaired and a new piano purchased for the orchestra. The entire building has been renovated.

SAUGERTIES STRIKE FEELING EXTENDS TO WOMEN.

Two in Court After Verbal Battle on Street.

The Saugerties Post says:

What was characterized as a "backyard scrap" was aired in police court before Police Justice H. D. Abeel Monday. The court room was crowded. The case is the outcome of remarks purporting to have been made by Mrs. Mary Wright, defendant, to Mrs. August Helke, complainant. The affair occurred last Friday on South Partition street, and Mrs. Wright was then taken into custody by State Trooper Minter.

According to the testimony given at the trial, Mrs. Wright was talking out of her window and was addressing her remarks to Mrs. Percy Carle. She asked Mrs. Carle if she had heard the latest. Mrs. Carle said no. Mrs. Wright replied, "They won't handle any of the Martin Cantine 'scabby' paper in New York." Mrs. Helke, whose husband works in the Cantine Co. factory, was passing by and overheard the remark, thinking it was a slur at her, and according to the testimony, called Mrs. Wright offensive names. Mrs. Wright thereupon retaliated by coming down to the street and a verbal battle between the two ensued.

No further testimony being given to prove that Mrs. Wright had intended her remarks for Mrs. Helke, on motion of Grant M. Brinnier, attorney for Mrs. Wright, the court discharged her. Frank W. Brooks of Kingston, was attorney for Mrs. Helke.

Police Justice Abeel before adjourning court, warned all present that no impartiality or favoritism would be shown by him in any cases involving union and non-union men that might come before his court.

Princess Lievin and Chauffeurs mm.

The Princess Lievin, member of former Russian noble family, kin to the Russian royalty, sold some of her almost priceless jewels in order to purchase a Paris garage and provide employment for "gentlemen chauffeurs," former members of the Russian Imperial Guard. Among the gems she disposed of were the famous Orloff pearls, which brought 1,500,000 francs. The Princess is shown here in the garage with some of her chauffeurs, among whom are Colonel Rostchin, Colonel Volkovinsky, formerly of the Imperial Lancers. Colonel Smagin, Colonel Benois and General Glebodd, a former Russian multi-millionaire landed proprietor.

HAS GOOD IDEA FOR DIARY

Man Finds Loose Leaf Eliminates Personal Historian's Worry and Is Sure Chronicler.

Arthur Bjinks has at last found a satisfactory way of keeping a diary. More than once he had started off the new year with a nice fresh volume, determined to let not a single day go by without making some entry. And more than once March, April or May have found the diary abandoned and forgotten. Now Arthur is getting along fine with what he calls his "occasional diary," the New York Sun and Globe states.

He explains:

"I found that what caused me to lose interest in other diaries was the feeling that however boring a day I might have put in, I felt compelled to make some sort of entry. No more do I use a dated printed diary. Instead I have a loose-leaf notebook. I write at the top of the page the date of any day which has seen events worth recording and make a note of them. There may be no entries between May 1 and 12 and June 3 on page 13. But that will be because nothing of interest or at least, worthy of note, has transpired between those dates.

"Thus I have a record of keen interest to myself that is not cluttered up with a lot of boring, uninteresting memoranda just because the space was there and had to be filled each night."

Saying Goes Back to Old Times.

The saying "not worth a rush" dates back to the days before carpets were invented, and the floors were strewn with rushes. When an honored guest was expected fresh green ones were cut and spread—but people of little consequence had to be contented with rushes that had been used, while the still humbler folk got none at all.

SPAN OF HUMAN LIFE IS STEADILY GROWING LONGER

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

Gradually the span of life in the United States is being lengthened, and among the interesting possibilities of the future is the question of how far these processes will go. But this is a problem that only the future can decide. Medical science, hygiene, right living and right thinking are combining to give a constantly greater expectancy to one's term of years, and it may be said that this prolongation of the period between birth and death constitutes the finest possible example of thrift.

The longer we live, the more we accomplish for ourselves and for others; the more deeply we reach into the springs of wisdom and experience; the more useful we grow as guides and teachers for others.

In the last 130 years there has been an increase, according to the most reliable statistics, of 23 years in the average length of life in this country. In 1789, statistics compiled in Massachusetts revealed the average span of life as 35.5 years; in 1855 it was 40 years, and there has since been a gradual increase. In 1910 it had risen throughout the nation to 53 years; in 1921, when the latest available figures were compiled, it had been extended to 58 years.

What this increase has meant in human accomplishment is beyond calculation!

Much is said about this being the golden age of youth, and all such statements are true, for, with our efficiently organized business life, our educational advantages and our broad, modern vision, opportunities for the young man were never so splendid.

As the result of these same fundamental conditions, the so-called old man of a generation or so ago is but the matured youth of today.

Back of all these accomplishments is the restless spirit of progress. They express the human impulse both to live longer and to live more usefully.

We pass this way but once. It is well that we not only make the most of our time but that we add to our period of usefulness and service the greatest possible number of years. To do so is one of the most exalted exemplifications of true thrift.

ST. PETER'S SUMMER FESTIVAL ON WEDNESDAY

Everything is in readiness for the parish picnic of St. Peter's Church tomorrow afternoon and evening. The spacious and clean grounds in the rear of the school house will be the scene of varied activities. Electric lights have been strung so that when the shades of night have fallen everything will be as bright as day. There will be games of all kinds for the kiddies connected with which prizes will be awarded and slides have been procured for their enjoyment. The older boys will have an opportunity of trying out their throwing arms on a rack of dolls with a goodly supply of baseballs.

A substantial supper for a nominal price will be served in the hall. Its popularity heretofore would seem to spell success for this year's affair. Cooling refreshments and candy and crackerjack for the youngsters will be there in abundance.

In the cool of the evening dancing will be in order on the Willited playground and in the hall itself.

The committee in charge have been promised the hearty cooperation of "Jupiter Pluvius" and with that assured the success of St. Peter's 1923 summer festival is a foregone conclusion.

Wind Blew Poles Down.

About 9 o'clock Monday evening a heavy gust of wind blew down the electric light poles at the intersection of West Pierpont and Hudson sreets. The police department notified the electric company and placed a patrolman on guard to warn pedestrians until repairs could be made.

Guests At Mohonk.

Lake Mohonk Mountain House is, as usual at this time of year, filled to capacity with guests.

MOVIE DRAMA BY LOCAL YOUTHS

The M. & V. Motion Picture Corporation of this city has closed a deal with a Newark company to start work on a picture to be entirely filmed in Kingston and vicinity. The story was written last year by John McLean and Joseph Van Bureu, both of this city, and is said to carry a genuine plot with plenty of action and love interest. The entire cast will be local, and officers of the corporation said today that the entire production would cover approximately six reels. The principal stars will be young women of this city who have been selected from a large list of applicants.

The entire cast will be under the personal direction of a qualified movie director and cameramen. It will take about six weeks to complete the filming of the drama. The members of the company have taken the necessary steps to incorporate and intend to produce motion pictures. Mr. McLean and Mr. Van Buren are now at work gathering material for the second production which will follow closely after the first.

WOMAN HELD UP BUT ESCAPES MAN WITH GUN

Mrs. Rotunda reported to the police Monday evening that while walking down the old Company Hill, in the rear of Temple Emanuel, she was held up by an Italian who drew a gun. She fled through the backyard of one of the properties abutting on the hill and made her escape. He did not fire at her. The hold-up occurred about 9 o'clcock.

LOCAL K. OF C. OFFERS PRAYERS FOR PRESIDENT

At the regular meeting of Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, Monday night, after the routine business had been completed the council adjourned out of respect to the late President Harding, the closing prayers being offered for him and and for the guidance of the new president.

GLEN BURNIE FARM SCENE OF CARD PARTY WEDNESDAY

Glen Burnie Farm on the old Hurley road will be the scene of the annual card party of the Ladies' Aid Society of Temple Emanuel Wednesday afternoon. Automobiles will be in waiting for the guests at the corner of Hurley avenue and Washington avenue to convey them to the party.

At The Auditorium.

"The Marriage Chance," a Hampton Del Ruth production scheduled to play at the Auditorium today, is a picture of mystery, thrills and surprise, with a cast including Alta Allen, Milton Sills, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Irene Rich, Mitchell Lewis, Laura La Varnie and Nick Cogley.

Dedicate Smiley Tower Soon.

Progress on the Albert K. Smiley Memorial Tower, under construction on Sky Top, is such that barring any unexpected delay in arrival of materials for the upper sections, the tower will be ready for dedication on the date planned, August 30th.

No Dance at Stone Ridge.

The Stone Ridge Grange by unanimous vote decided to suspend all Grange business on Friday, August 10, the day of the funeral of the President Harding. There will be no dance in the Grange hall on the evening of that day.

Get Wiring Contract.

Frank and Charles Sass, known as Sass brothers, electrical contractors of 54 East Pierpont street, have been awarded the contract for the wiring of the Holy Cross Moonastery at West Park.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 7.—Steadiness marked trading at the opening of the stock exchange today. Business was fairly active with gains from a fraction to one point well distributed throughout the list. Baldwin at 113⅛ and American Locomotive at 73½, were up ⅛. Bethlehem Steel was unchanged at 47⅞, United States Steel, however, lost ⅜ to 87⅞. Pan-American Petroleum rose ⅝ to 60, Producers and Refiners ¼ to 31 Pacific Oil ¼ to 33¼, Houston Oil ¼ to 45¼ and Sinclair Oil at 22, was unchanged. Railroad stocks were steady. Baltimore and Ohio rose ½ to 47½. Northern Pacific ⅛ to 56, Great Northern Preferred ⅞ to 53⅞ and Union Pacific ⅛ to 126⅛. St. Paul Preferred was unchanged at 25½.

Dull, but steady price movements characterized the forenoon trading. No particular group received special favor, but the absolute absence of selling pressure was an encouraging feature.

Although trading continued extremely dull in the afternoon the tone remained steady with gains of a fraction to over 1 point being scattered throughout the list.

Little Helen Girynowitz, 11 years old, and Richard Vetter, 13 years old, who were playing on the sidewalk with the Kraus child at the time, testified that they were sitting on the curb as the car approached. Just as the car got closer the little Kraus girl who was standing on the curb suddenly started out into the road and becoming confused ran back and forth and that the car dodged to avoid hitting the child.

A number of the witnesses testified as to the rate of speed at which the car was going. Adamson, who signed the affidavit, said that he estimated the speed at about 15 miles an hour and not more than twenty at the outside.

At the close of the People's case District Attorney Traver said that there were two phases of the case which, according to the testimony given on the witness stand, showed negligence, but that testimony had been contradicted by other witnesses.

Attorney Brooks's motion to dismiss the charge against McDowell and cancel the bail bond was granted by Judge Schirick.

The outcome of the hearing this morning does not prevent the submission of the case to the grand jury if any new evidence tending to show negligence on the part of McDowell is obtained. It also does not prevent the bringing of a civil suit by the parents of the dead child to recover damages, but undoubtedly the evidence offered this morning would have a decided bearing upon the outcome of a civil action.

Carle's Case Adjourned.

Owing to the fact that the McDowell case took such a length of time to try the hearing in the case of Eugene Carle, arrested July 16, on a charge of reckless driving on Abeel street, was adjourned to September 7, and bail bond continued.

Two Speeders Caught.

William Hartwell of Brooklyn was clocked doing 35 miles an hour on Foxhall avenue Monday afternoon by Officer Kuehn. Hartwell forfeited $15 cash bail by failure to appear in court today.

Albert Dekoskie of 13 East Union street, clocked by Officer Kuehn doing 33 miles an hour on Downs street, paid a $10 fine.

Clarence Bell was arrested Monday by Officer Aley on a charge of failure to obey traffic signals at the West Shore crossing. Bell pleaded guilty but stated it was due to the fact that he did not observe the officer's signal as another rig was in front of him, and he was discharged.

Other Cases.

Monday afternoon the charge was withdrawn against Andrew J. Smith arrested by Sergeant Phinney on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Ida DuBois of 36 Franklin street, who claimed that Smith had defrauded her out of a board bill, and Smith was discharged.

Mrs. Daniel DeLanoy died in Glasco, Saturday, August 4. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edith Ebel of Glasco, and Mrs. Charles Gehbauer of Brooklyn, and two sons, Harry Delanoy of Brooklyn, and Marvin DeLanoy of Schenectady. The surviving family will receive the sympathy of many friends. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Paul Newkirk, officiating. Burial in Pine Bush cemetery, Katrine.

George Kime, a former resident of Glasco, where for years he had been engaged in the butcher business, died at Red Hook, Sunday, August 5. He is survived by his wife who was before marriage Kate Rogers of Saugerties, a number of adult children, and two brothers, Urban and Herman Kime of Glasco. Edward Rogers of Market street, Saugerties, is a brother-in-law of the deceased. The body will be brought to Saugerties Wednesday and interred in Mountain View Cemetery.

Emilie Hiob, wife of Harry Van Steenburgh, died on Monday after a long illness. She was born in Germany on March 27, 1864, and had been a resident of Kingston for 13 years. She is survived by her husband, one daughter Frida, of Kingston and two sons, Paul and Emil of New York, also one brother and two sisters, one in Kingston and the other in Germany. Funeral at the chapel of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in the Hurley Cemetery.

On Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the family residence of the late Sarah Purvis on Abeel street to pay their last respects to one who was honored and loved by all who knew her. The Rev. A. C. Agnew of St. John's Episcopal Church of High Falls read the Episcopal funeral service and also a favorite hymn of the deceased, "There's a Beautiful Land on High." Interment was made in Montrepose Cemetery where the commital service was read by the Rev. Mr. Agnew. The bearers were James W. Purvis, Richard Purvis, Thoams Purvis, John Purvis, Fred Lane and William Charlton.

The remains of Arthur Ellsworth, drowned in the Hudson river off Poughkeepsie on Sunday morning, were brought to this city Monday and taken to the home of his brother, William Ellsworth, 262 Linderman avenue. Services will be held from there on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck cemetery. Mr. Ellsworth is survived by his stepmother, Mrs. Emma Ellsworth, one daughter Louisa, two brothers, William and Frederick, two sisters, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Jr., of this city, and Mrs. Charles Steinman of Jamaica, L. I. Mr. Ellsworth had been working for J. A. Comerford, in the trucking business in Poughkeepsie, for the past six years.

MOURNING SIGNS PLENTIFUL HERE

Tributes to Warren G. Harding, late president of the United States, are being shown at various places about the city. The front entrance to the court house is draped with black panels at the sides and top of the doors, while the large flag is suspended in the front yard. Charles A. Warren has his large show window arranged as a tribute with a portrait of President Harding draped with flags and vases of flowers. A portrait of the late president draped with a flag stands at the entrance to the Wonderly store. Rose-Gorman-Rose are utilizing the large show window at the left of the entrance to their department store as a memorial tribute. In the center has been placed a large portrait of the late president, while mourning bands are placed at the ends of the window. Standing between a vacant chair and the portrait is a card on which is lettered "The Nation Mourns its President." Flags make a background for the window. The front of the store over the large entrance is draped with mourning streamers.

Scores of homes display the stars and stripes at half staff.

Odds and Ends

The women and girls of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church who are to assist at the clambake to be held at the armory tomorrow are requested to meet in the church this evening at 7 o'clock.

Youthful Curiosity.

The eleven-year-old, with pigtails, fairly flaunted a highly superior responsibility as she led the six-year-old, with bobbed hair, to meet their mother in the restaurant. "Alice is perfectly terrible, mother," she said with the air of one sharing mature confidence. "She does the most dreadful things. I told her that you said I should keep hold of her hand all the time we were out, but she kept trying to pull it away, and what do you think she did on the street car? There was a sign there and she asked me what it was and I told her that it said $500 fine for spitting on the floor and she spit on the floor to see if it was true." "Ah," said the six-year-old disgustedly, "I knew they wouldn't arrest me."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Largest Book in the World.

Prof. Max Multer, of Oxford, in one of his lectures, calls attention to the largest book in the world, the wonderful Kutho Daw. It consists of 729 parts in the shape of white marble plates, covered with inscriptions, each plate built over with a temple of brick. It is found near the old priest city of Mandalay, in Burmah, and this temple city of more than seven hundred pagodas virtually makes up this monster book, the religious codex of the Buddhists. In accordance with the three parts of which it is composed, generally called in a figurative sense baskets (pitaka), the whole is often termed the three baskets (tripitaka), and constitutes a library larger than the Bible and the Koran together.

Sources of Asia's Greatest Rivers.

Kingdom Ward, who has returned from Burma after 11 months spent in the Tibetan-Yunnan valley, made a complete traverse, east to west, of that extraordinary belt of the earth's crust through which the waters of the Tibetan plateau escape. Here four of the greatest rivers of Asia flow in a strip of mountainous country not more than 75 miles wide. There is nothing elsewhere on the earth's surface to compare with these mighty rivers—the Yangtse, Mekong, Salween and Irrawaddy—running parallel to each other for a hundred miles and separated only by rock partitions which in places attain altitudes of 25,000 feet.—London Times.

The Old Bowery.

The Bowery was the first street in New York to take up lighting in a serious way. In 1882, the year of the opening of the first electric light company, the Bowery won this tribute from the Electrical Review: "The Bowery, that enterprising if not fashionable street, is the first great thoroughfare to adopt the new electric lights on a grand scale. Before magnificent Broadway or superlative Fifth avenue, the Bowery blazes with light, and every second-hand clothing shop has a dazzling globe over the entrance." The event was celebrated with a big parade.

Nature Leading Art.

The true artist does not find all beauty in the human face or form. He looks upon the sunset, painting all the clouds with rosy hue, and his highest wish is to create another scene like this. He never dreams that he could paint a sunset fairer than the one which lights the fading world. A fairer sunset would be something else. He sees beauty in the quiet lake, the grassy field, and running brook; he sees majesty in the cataract and mountain peak. He knows that he can paint no streams and mountain peaks more perfect than the ones that nature made. —Clarence S. Darrow.

Birds Never on Strike.

Birds constitute a great army of feathered workmen, many of them working for us 365 days in the year, without pay and without even the necessity of supervision, says Nature Magazine of Washington. They never meet us with black looks, they are always cheerful; they never ask for higher wages and they never go on strike. It would seem that there should be the keenest competition for their services, and the best way to compete is to give them protection and encouragement by every means in our power.

Kindergarten Helps for Parents

AMERICAN MOTHERS

By DR. JENNY B. MERRILL

The phenomenal success of American boys at the front after an unusually short military training was not only a great cause of thankfulness, but indicated that American mothers' methods of discipline had not been indulgent nor lax in the past as some good critics have feared. There has been a blessing in disguise in the free action and self-assertion that are allowed American children.

"Fifty years ago a little book entitled "Children's Rights" appeared in this country. Perhaps it went too far, but children have suffered long from too great severity. Herbert Spencer in England wrote of children's rights as well as of women's. The words of progressive thinkers on b[...] subjects were needed. Later from Sweden, Ellen Key sent out "The Century of the Child." Later yet came from Italy Doctor Montessori's outcry against suppression of the child by arbitrary discipline, and her advocacy of discipline "based on liberty."

Probably all of these leaders directly or indirectly gained much of their inspiration and guidance from Froebel who dared to write even in Germany "Follow the Child."

Never Flourished in Germany.

Froebel, the founder of the kindergarten, was German but not Prussian. Prussia soon recognized that "democracy" would be the outcome of his method and promptly suppressed it. Many do not know that the kindergarten never has flourished in Germany.

Froebel was in a sense a martyr. He died disappointed with his own nation's rejection of the kindergarten, but with his "eye of faith" he turned hopefully towards America in whose country, he prophesied, his idea would flourish under democratic protection and guidance.

Mothers of America, many of them, as well as teachers, have studied kindergarten principles for 50 years and have again and again testified to their value.

"What are these principles?" Read Miss Emilie Poulsson's "Love and Law in Child Training." This may be found in almost any library or can be bought from the publishers, Milton Bradley Co., Springfield, Mass., for $1. Its very title suggests the kindergarten's principles—love and law, but not license.

Kindergarten discipline is loving, steady and strong, not sentimental or weak. Kindergarten discipline prefers positive rather than negative methods. The life of the child is not fitted with "don'ts," for there are so many good things found to do, there is little time for mischief.

For Mother and Child Alike.

Childish mistakes and mishaps are met with patience. Mother gives the little one time to recover himself. Self-control is her aim. Request is preferred to force. Politeness is the rule for mother and child alike. Both use frequently "the two little golden keys, 'I thank you' and 'If you please.'"

"A soft answer turneth away wrath." "Grievous words" are avoided because centuries ago it was discovered that they "stir up anger." There are no loud, shrill tones, but rather quiet, decided emphasis, if need be.

"Vain repetitions" having proved themselves useless, the wise mother accepts the terse statement that "In discipline one can hardly speak little enough."

No doubt American mothers have still to learn but well may they take heart from their boys' record in France.

"First Aid" Book.

Under the letter P, for example, write the antidote for the different poisons, for, although one may know them, when the baby swallows the wrong tablet knowledge is apt to desert one, and by the time the doctor arrives upon the scene it may be too late.

Under F write "Fainting Spells" and what to do. "Cuts and Bruises" go under their proper letter, and "Sunstroke," "Burns," and so on, through the list of accidents and sudden illnesses. All this may be taken from a regular first-aid book, but added to this may be remedies for sickness to which one's special family is subject.

From year to year one forgets what it was that proved so effective in a case of quinsy, but can easily refresh it in this manner.

Being arranged alphabetically, it is the work of but a moment to find the desired information.

"Artificial Rain" Theory.

Some have thought that the jolting effect of concussions joggles together the moisture particles in the air, just as a sharp tap on a window pane will start a descent of large drops from many small ones made by a mist or drizzle. A sharp downpour of rain following immediately after a heavy crash of thunder is supposed to be an example of the same cause and effect. This theory was partly back of the "rain-making" attempts formerly tried in Kansas, Texas and elsewhere to break droughts by a "bombardment of the skies."

Her Course Mapped.

Speaking to a number of children about school, I turned to the smallest and asked her which way she went to school, and, pointing her little finger, she said: "Two blocks straight and two blocks crooked."—Chicago News.

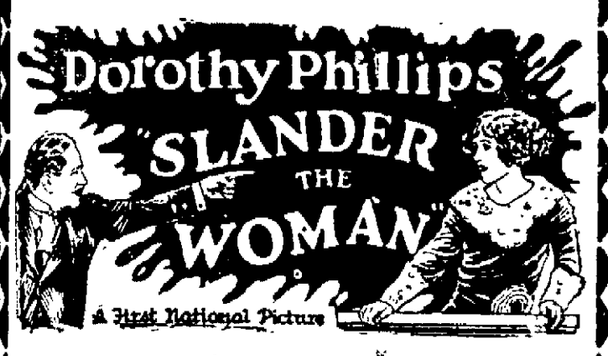
Again TONIGHT and Wednesday

YOU'LL TALK ABOUT THIS FOR MONTHS—
DON'T MISS IT!



With its scenes shifting from a court of justice—or injustice, as you choose to term it, to the snow covered distances of "The White Frontier" of Northern Canada, where a beautiful young woman with a good name, blackened by scandal, first goes to escape, then to fight for her reputation, "Slander the Woman," sweeps with a great dramatic motif. Almost from the first scene the spectator finds himself caught in the maelstrom of emotions that engulf the players in the drama and is carried along to its powerful and unexpected climax. The story tells of a beautiful girl who innocently becomes involved in a scandal and when she leaves the courtroom the good name and honor that she has treasured has been taken from her. An ambitious judge, eager for publicity, has made her a sacrifice on the altar of his fame—but not before she turns and in terror, despair and hatred of the injustice of the thing, denounces him and promises a just punishment for his actions. Then she runs away to the far north country where people go—to forget—and to be forgotten. Against this picturesque background the drama continues, stirring, emotional, powerful. With a woman's vengeance and a woman's love struggling for supremacy, Dorothy Phillips rises to great dramatic heights in this play that Allen Holubar has directed with his usual skill.

CHAMPION SARAZEN SHOWS CADDIES FEW FANCY SHOTS

Gene Sarazen, national open and professional golf champion, is seen showing the caddies at the Sleepy Hollow (N. Y.) golf club a few shots. The caddies had their hands full for they carried the bag for more than 250 father and son teams entered in the annual Pater et Filius golf tournament.

Golf Is Gaining

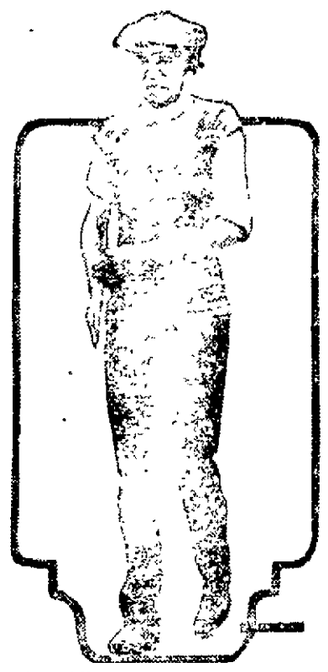
According to a report filed recently, 292 golf clubs are flourishing in that country, representing in property and equipment more than $10,000,000.

In 1916, there were only 76 golf courses and this number increased to 218 in 1922. Since the first of the year the courses have increased 74, a rather surprising number.

Canada is still far behind the United States in the matter of clubs and the number of persons playing the popular Scotch sport. It is estimated that in Minneapolis alone close to 10,000 persons play golf regularly.

O'Leary Still Walks



Dan O'Leary, champion long distance hiker of the world, is eighty-two years old and celebrated the event by taking a 100-mile hike at Cincinnati as has been his custom on every recurring anniversary for the last half a century.

Noisiest Ball Fan

Baltimore boasts of the noisiest baseball rooter. Armed with an auto horn he invades the Oriole ball park and does his loudest to disconcert the visiting pitcher or batter at a critical moment. Recently he became so boisterous that the manager of the Buffalo team sent an official protest to President Toole of the International league. The executive sent word to his umpires to see that the auto horn was not rested atop the visiting players' dugout.

MANAGER PAT MORAN HAS MANY TWIRLERS

Red Pitchers Adept at Every Style of Delivery.

"We have one great asset in our pitching staff," says Pat Moran, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, "and that's different styles of deliveries. I don't ever remember seeing so many different methods of pitching in my whole career. A club that can send in pitchers of varying styles has a big advantage over teams whose pitchers seem to be made in the same mold.

"The champion Cubs had it over all competitors in this respect. Brown's delivery was utterly different from that of Reulbach, and Big Ed, in turn, threw shoots that had no likeness to those of Lundgren or Overall. Each of the four great right-handers had his own method of delivery, his own set of curves, and not a particle of similarity between any two of them. Add to this layout the left-handed Pfeister, and the combination was too much for the other fellows.

"Our present staff shows wonderful variety. Ring and Benton, both left-handers, have wholly differing styles of work. Donahue and Keck, who should both be great winners this season, employ opposite deliveries, Donahue sending them from up high, while Keck has an underhanded shoot that's a wonder. Couch's style hasn't the least resemblance to that of either Keck or Donahue, and Luque, again, doesn't pitch like any of the three other right-handers.

"We can give the hostile batters a flock of different stuff this summer, and can mix things up against them all the time. And I think that is going to help the good cause considerably."

ST. PETER'S SUMMER FESTIVAL ON WEDNESDAY

Everything is in readiness for the parish picnic of St. Peter's Church tomorrow afternoon and evening. The spacious and clean grounds in the rear of the school house will be the scene of varied activities. Electric lights have been strung so that when the shades of night have fallen everything will be as bright as day. There will be games of all kinds for the kiddies connected with which prizes will be awarded and slides have been procured for their enjoyment. The older boys will have an opportunity of trying out their throwing arms on a rack of dolls with a goodly supply of baseballs.

A substantial supper for a nominal price will be served in the hall. Its popularity heretofore would seem to spell success for this year's affair. Cooling refreshments and candy and crackerjack for the youngsters will be there in abundance.

In the cool of the evening dancing will be in order on the Willited playground and in the hall itself.

The committee in charge have been promised the hearty cooperation of "Jupiter Pluvius" and with that assured the success of St. Peter's 1923 summer festival is a foregone conclusion.

Wind Blew Poles Down.

About 9 o'clock Monday evening a heavy gust of wind blew down the electric light poles at the intersection of West Pierpont and Hudson sreets. The police department notified the electric company and placed a patrolman on guard to warn pedestrians until repairs could be made.

Guests At Mohonk.

Lake Mohonk Mountain House is, as usual at this time of year, filled to capacity with guests.

MOVIE DRAMA BY LOCAL YOUTHS

The M. & V. Motion Picture Corporation of this city has closed a deal with a Newark company to start work on a picture to be entirely filmed in Kingston and vicinity. The story was written last year by John McLean and Joseph Van Buren, both of this city, and is said to carry a genuine plot with plenty of action and love interest. The entire cast will be local, and officers of the corporation said today that the entire production would cover approximately six reels. The principal stars will be young women of this city who have been selected from a large list of applicants.

The entire cast will be under the personal direction of a qualified movie director and cameramen. It will take about six weeks to complete the filming of the drama. The members of the company have taken the necessary steps to incorporate and intend to produce motion pictures. Mr. McLean and Mr. Van Buren are now at work gathering material for the second production which will follow closely after the first.

WOMAN HELD UP BUT ESCAPES MAN WITH GUN

Mrs. Rotunda reported to the police Monday evening that while walking down the old Company Hill, in the rear of Temple Emanuel, she was held up by an Italian who drew a gun. She fled through the backyard of one of the properties abutting on the hill and made her escape. He did not fire at her. The hold-up occurred about 9 o'clock.

LOCAL K. OF C. OFFERS PRAYERS FOR PRESIDENT

At the regular meeting of Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, Monday night, after the routine business had been completed the council adjourned out of respect to the late President Harding, the closing prayers being offered for him and and for the guidance of the new president.

GLEN BURNIE FARM SCENE OF CARD PARTY WEDNESDAY

Glen Burnie Farm on the old Hurley road will be the scene of the annual card party of the Ladies' Aid Society of Temple Emanuel Wednesday afternoon. Automobiles will be in waiting for the guests at the corner of Hurley avenue and Washington avenue to convey them to the party.

At The Auditorium.

"The Marriage Chance," a Hampton Del Ruth production scheduled to play at the Auditorium today, is a picture of mystery, thrills and surprise, with a cast including Alta Allen, Milton Sills, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Irene Rich, Mitchell Lewis, Laura La Varnie and Nick Cogley.

Dedicate Smiley Tower Soon.

Progress on the Albert K. Smiley Memorial Tower, under construction on Sky Top, is such that barring any unexpected delay in arrival of materials for the upper sections, the tower will be ready for dedication on the date planned, August 30th.

No Dance at Stone Ridge.

The Stone Ridge Grange by unanimous vote decided to suspend all Grange business on Friday, August 10, the day of the funeral of the President Harding. There will be no dance in the Grange hall on the evening of that day.

Get Wiring Contract.

Frank and Charles Sass, known as Sass brothers, electrical contractors of 54 East Pierpont street, have been awarded the contract for the wiring of the Holy Cross Moonastery at West Park.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 7.—Steadiness marked trading at the opening of the stock exchange today. Business was fairly active with gains from a fraction to one point well distributed throughout the list. Baldwin at 113⅛ and American Locomotive at 73½, were up ⅛. Bethlehem Steel was unchanged at 47¾. United States Steel, however, lost ⅜ to 87¾. Pan-American Petroleum rose ⅝ to 60. Producers and Refiners ¼ to 31 Pacific Oil ⅛ to 33¼. Houston Oil ¼ to 45¼ and Sinclair Oil at 22, was unchanged. Railroad stocks were steady. Baltimore and Ohio rose ½ to 47½, Northern Pacific ⅛ to 56, Great Northern Preferred ⅞ to 53⅞ and Union Pacific ⅛ to 126⅛. St. Paul Preferred was unchanged at 25½.

Dull, but steady price movements characterized the forenoon trading. No particular group received special favor, but the absolute absence of selling pressure was an encouraging feature.

Although trading continued extremely dull in the afternoon the tone remained steady with gains of a fraction to over 1 point being scattered throughout the list.

Little Helen Girynowitz, 11 years old, and Richard Vetter, 13 years old, who were playing on the sidewalk with the Kraus child at the time, testified that they were sitting on the curb as the car approached. Just as the car got closer the little Kraus girl who was standing on the curb suddenly started out into the road and becoming confused ran back and forth and that the car dodged to avoid hitting the child.

A number of the witnesses testified as to the rate of speed at which the car was going. Adamson, who signed the affidavit, said that he estimated the speed at about 15 miles an hour and not more than twenty at the outside.

At the close of the People's case District Attorney Traver said that there were two phases of the case which, according to the testimony given on the witness stand, showed negligence, but that testimony had been contradicted by other witnesses.

Attorney Brooks's motion to dismiss the charge against McDowell and cancel the bail bond was granted by Judge Schirick.

The outcome of the hearing this morning does not prevent the submission of the case to the grand jury if any new evidence tending to show negligence on the part of McDowell is obtained. It also does not prevent the bringing of a civil suit by the parents of the dead child to recover damages, but undoubtedly the evidence offered this morning would have a decided bearing upon the outcome of a civil action.

Carle's Case Adjourned.

Owing to the fact that the McDowell case took such a length of time to try the hearing in the case of Eugene Carle, arrested July 16, on a charge of reckless driving on Abeel street, was adjourned to September 7, and bail bond continued.

Two Speeders Caught.

William Hartwell of Brooklyn was clocked doing 35 miles an hour on Foxhall avenue Monday afternoon by Officer Kuehn. Hartwell forfeited $15 cash bail by failure to appear in court today.

Albert Dekoskie of 13 East Union street, clocked by Officer Kuehn doing 33 miles an hour on Downs street, paid a $10 fine.

Clarence Bell was arrested Monday by Officer Aley on a charge of failure to obey traffic signals at the West Shore crossing. Bell pleaded guilty but stated it was due to the fact that he did not observe the officer's signal as another rig was in front of him, and he was discharged.

Other Cases.

Paul Schmeider who parked his car in front of a fire hydrant this morning paid a $2 fine.

Monday afternoon the charge was withdrawn against Andrew J. Smith arrested by Sergeant Phinney on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Ida DuBois of 36 Franklin street, who claimed that Smith had defrauded her out of a board bill, and Smith was discharged.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Helen, daughter of Simon Roosa, of Stone Ridge died Monday morning in the 37th year of her age. Funeral Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock standard, time. Interment in Fairview cemetery, Stone Ridge.

Mrs. Daniel DeLanoy died in Glasco, Saturday, August 4. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edith Ebel of Glasco, and Mrs. Charles Gehbauer of Brooklyn, and two sons, Harry Delanoy of Brooklyn, and Marvin DeLanoy of Schenectady. The surviving family will receive the sympathy of many friends. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Paul Newkirk, officiating. Burial in Pine Bush cemetery, Katrine.

George Kime, a former resident of Glasco, where for years he had been engaged in the butcher business, died at Red Hook, Sunday, August 5. He is survived by his wife who was before marriage Kate Rogers of Saugerties, a number of adult children, and two brothers, Urban and Herman Kime of Glasco. Edward Rogers of Market street, Saugerties, is a brother-in-law of the deceased. The body will be brought to Saugerties Wednesday and interred in Mountain View Cemetery.

Emilie Hiob, wife of Harry Van Steenburgh, died on Monday after a long illness. She was born in Germany on March 27, 1864, and had been a resident of Kingston for 13 years. She is survived by her husband, one daughter Frida, of Kingston and two sons, Paul and Emil of New York, also one brother and two sisters, one in Kingston and the other in Germany. Funeral at the chapel of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in the Hurley Cemetery.

On Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the family residence of the late Sarah Purvis on Abeel street to pay their last respects to one who was honored and loved by all who knew her. The Rev. A. C. Agnew of St. John's Episcopal Church of High Falls read the Episcopal funeral service and also a favorite hymn of the deceased, "There's a Beautiful Land on High." Interment was made in Montrepose Cemetery where the commital service was read by the Rev. Mr. Agnew. The bearers were James W. Purvis, Richard Furvis, Thoams Purvis, John Purvis, Fred Lane and William Charlton.

The remains of Arthur Ellsworth, drowned in the Hudson river off Poughkeepsie on Sunday morning, were brought to this city Monday and taken to the home of his brother, William Ellsworth, 262 Linderman avenue. Services will be held from there on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck cemetery. Mr. Ellsworth is survived by his stepmother, Mrs. Emma Ellsworth, one daughter Louisa, two brothers, William and Frederick, two sisters, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Jr., of this city, and Mrs. Charles Steinman of Jamaica, L. I. Mr. Ellsworth had been working for J. A. Comerford, in the trucking business in Poughkeepsie, for the past six years.

MOURNING SIGNS PLENTIFUL HERE

Tributes to Warren G. Harding, late president of the United States, are being shown at various places about the city. The front entrance to the court house is draped with black panels at the sides and top of the doors, while the large flag is suspended in the front yard. Charles A. Warren has his large show window arranged as a tribute with a portrait of President Harding draped with flags and vases of flowers. A portrait of the late president draped with a flag stands at the entrance to the Wonderly store. Rose-Gorman-Rose are utilizing the large show window at the left of the entrance to their department store as a memorial tribute. In the center has been placed a large portrait of the late president, while mourning bands are placed at the ends of the window. Standing between a vacant chair and the portrait is a card on which is lettered "The Nation Mourns its President." Flags make a background for the window. The front of the store over the large entrance is draped with mourning streamers.

Scores of homes display the stars and stripes at half staff.

Odds and Ends

The women and girls of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church who are to assist at the clambake to be held at the armory tomorrow are requested to meet in the church this evening at 7 o'clock.

Youthful Curiosity.

The eleven-year-old, with pigtails, fairly flaunted a highly superior responsibility as she led the six-year-old, with bobbed hair, to meet their mother in the restaurant. "Alice is perfectly terrible, mother," she said with the air of one sharing mature confidence. "She does the most dreadful things. I told her that you said I should keep hold of her hand all the time we were out, but she kept trying to pull it away, and what do you think she did on the street car? There was a sign there and she asked me what it was and I told her that it said $500 fine for spitting on the floor and she spit on the floor to see if it was true." "Ah," said the six-year-old disgustedly, "I knew they wouldn't arrest me." —Cincinnati Times-Star.

Largest Book in the World.

Prof. Max Multer, of Oxford, in one of his lectures, calls attention to the largest book in the world, the wonderful Kutho Daw. It consists of 729 parts in the shape of white marble plates, covered with inscriptions, each plate built over with a temple of brick. It is found near the old priest city of Mandalay, in Burmah, and this temple city of more than seven hundred pagodas virtually makes up this monster book, the religious codex of the Buddhists. In accordance with the three parts of which it is composed, generally called in a figurative sense baskets (pitaka), the whole is often termed the three baskets (tripitaka), and constitutes a library larger than the Bible and the Koran together.

Sources of Asia's Greatest Rivers.

Kingdom Ward, who has returned from Burma after 11 months spent in the Tibetan-Yunnan valley, made a complete traverse, east to west, of that extraordinary belt of the earth's crust through which the waters of the Tibetan plateau escape. Here four of the greatest rivers of Asia flow in a strip of mountainous country not more than 75 miles wide. There is nothing elsewhere on the earth's surface to compare with these mighty rivers—the Yangtse, Mekong, Salween and Irrawaddy—running parallel to each other for a hundred miles and separated only by rock partitions which in places attain altitudes of 25,000 feet. —London Times.

The Old Bowery.

The Bowery was the first street in New York to take up lighting in a serious way. In 1882, the year of the opening of the first electric light company, the Bowery won this tribute from the Electrical Review: "The Bowery, that enterprising if not fashionable street, is the first great thoroughfare to adopt the new electric lights on a grand scale. Before magnificent Broadway or superlative Fifth avenue, the Bowery blazes with light, and every second-hand clothing shop has a dazzling globe over the entrance." The event was celebrated with a big parade.

Nature Leading Art.

The true artist does not find all beauty in the human face or form. He looks upon the sunset, painting all the clouds with rosy hue, and his highest wish is to create another scene like this. He never dreams that he could paint a sunset fairer than the one which lights the fading world. A fairer sunset would be something else. He sees beauty in the quiet lake, the grassy field, and running brook; he sees majesty in the cataract and mountain peak. He knows that he can paint no streams and mountain peaks more perfect than the ones that nature made. —Clarence S. Darrow.

Birds Never on Strike.

Birds constitute a great army of feathered workmen, many of them working for us 365 days in the year, without pay and without even the necessity of supervision, says Nature Magazine of Washington. They never meet us with black looks, they are always cheerful; they never ask for higher wages and they never go on strike. It would seem that there should be the keenest competition for their services, and the best way to compete is to give them protection and encouragement by every means in our power.

Kindergarten Helps for Parents

Articles Issued by the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education and the National Kindergarten Association

AMERICAN MOTHERS

By DR. JENNY B. MERRILL

The phenomenal success of Ame[rican] boys at the front after an [unusu]ally short military training was [not] only a great cause of thankfulness, [but] indicated that American moth[ers'] methods of discipline had not be[en as] indulgent nor lax in the past as [some] good critics have feared. There [has] been a blessing in disguise in the [free] action and self-assertion that are [al]lowed American children.

Fifty years ago a little book ent[itled] "Children's Rights" appeared in [this] country. Perhaps it went too far, [but] children have suffered long from [too] great severity. Herbert Spencer [of] England wrote of children's rights [as] well as of women's. The words of [pro]gressive thinkers on both subjects [were] needed. Later from Sweden, E[llen] Key, sent out "The Century of [the] Child." Later yet came from [the] Doctor Montessori's outcry ag[ainst] suppression of the child by arbit[rary] discipline, and her advocacy of [disci]pline "based on liberty."

Probably all of these leaders dire[ctly] or indirectly gained much of their [in]spiration and guidance from Froe[bel] who dared to write even in Germ[any] "Follow the Child."

Never Flourished in Germany.

Froebel, the founder of the kin[der]garten, was German but not Prus[sian.] Prussia soon recognized that "dem[oc]racy" would be the outcome of [his] method and promptly suppressed [it.] Many do not know that the kinder[gar]ten never has flourished in Germ[any.]

Froebel was in a sense a martyr [and] died disappointed with his own [na]tion's rejection of the kindergart[en,] but with his "eye of faith" he tur[ned] hopefully towards America in w[hich] country, he prophesied, his id[ea] would flourish under democratic [pro]tection and guidance.

Mothers of America, many of th[em] as well as teachers, have studied [kin]dergarten principles for 50 years [and] have again and again testified to th[eir] value.

"What are these principles?" Re[ad] Miss Emilie Poulsson's "Love and L[aw] in Child Training." This may be fo[und] in almost any library or can [be] bought from the publishers, Mil[ton] Bradley Co., Springfield, Mass., [for] $1. Its very title suggests the kind[er]garten's principles—love and law, [but] not license.

Kindergarten discipline is lov[ing,] steady and strong, not sentiment[al or] weak. Kindergarten discipline pref[ers] positive rather than negative meth[ods.] The life of the child is not fitted w[ith] "don'ts," for there are so many [good] things found to do, there is little t[ime] for mischief.

For Mother and Child Alike.

Childish mistakes and mishaps [are] met with patience. Mother gives [a] little one time to recover himself. S[elf-]control is her aim. Request is p[re]ferred to force. Politeness is the r[ule] for mother and child alike. Both [use] frequently "the two little golden [rules,] 'I thank you' and 'If you please.'"

"A soft answer turneth away wra[th."] "Grievous words" are avoided beca[use] centuries ago it was discovered th[at] they "stir up anger." There are [no] loud, shrill tones, but rather quiet, [de]cided emphasis, if need be.

"Vain repetitions" having pro[ved] themselves useless, the wise mother [ac]cepts the terse statement that "In [dis]cipline one can hardly speak li[ttle] enough."

No doubt American mothers h[ave] still to learn but well may they t[ake] heart from their boys' record [in] France.

"First Aid" Book.

Attach to the medicine closet, wi[th] string and pencil, a small alphab[et]ically arranged notebook.

Under the letter P, for exam[ple,] write the antidote for the different p[oi]sons, for, although one may kn[ow] them, when the baby swallows [the] wrong tablet knowledge is apt to [de]sert one, and by the time the doc[tor] arrives upon the scene it may be t[oo] late.

Under F write "Fainting Spells" a[nd] what to do. "Cuts and Bruises" [go] under their proper letter, and "S[un]stroke," "Burns," and so on, thr[ough] the list of accidents and sudden [ill]nesses. Being arranged alphabetically, [it is] the work of but a moment to find [the] desired information.

"Artificial Rain" Theory.

Some have thought that the [jar]ring effect of concussions joggles [to]gether the moisture particles in [the] air, just as a sharp tap on a win[dow] pane will start a descent of la[rge] drops from many small ones mad[e by] a mist or drizzle. A sharp downp[our] of rain following immediately aft[er a] heavy crash of thunder is suppose[d to] be an example of the same cause [and] effect. This theory was partly bac[k of] the "rain-making" attempts form[erly] tried in Kansas, Texas and elsew[here] to break droughts by a "bombard[ment] of the skies."

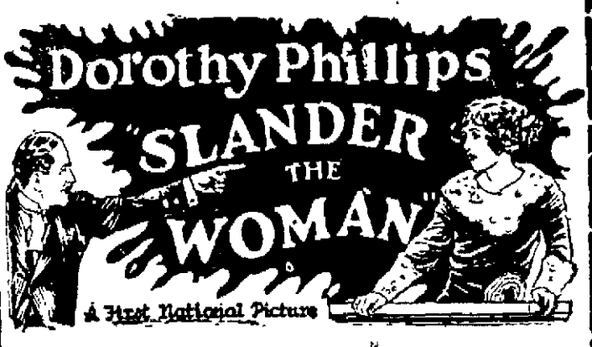
IT'S COOLER IN KEENEY'S

KEENEY'S THEATRE

Again TONIGHT and Wednesday

YOU'LL TALK ABOUT THIS FOR MONTHS—
DON'T MISS IT!



With its scenes shifting from a court of justice—or injustice, as you choose to term it, to the snow covered distances of "The White Frontier" of Northern Canada, where a beautiful young woman with a good name, blackened by scandal, first goes to escape, then to fight for her reputation, "Slander the Woman," sweeps with a great dramatic motif. Almost from the first scene the spectator finds himself caught in the maelstrom of emotions that engulf the players in the drama and is carried along to its powerful and unexpected climax. The story tells of a beautiful girl who innocently becomes involved in a scandal and when she leaves the courtroom the good name and honor that she has treasured has been taken from her. An ambitious judge, eager for publicity, has made her a sacrifice on the altar of his fame—but not before she turns and in terror, despair and hatred of the injustice of the thing, denounces him and promises a just punishment for his actions. Then she runs away to the far north country where people go—to forget—and to be forgotten. Against this picturesque background the drama continues, stirring, emotional, powerful. With a woman's vengeance and a woman's love struggling for supremacy, Dorothy Phillips rises to great dramatic heights in this play that Allen Holubar has directed with his usual skill.

CHAMPION SARAZEN SHOWS CADDIES FEW FANCY SHOTS

Gene Sarazen, national open and professional golf champion, is seen showing the caddies at the Sleepy Hollow (N. Y.) golf club a few shots. The caddies had their hands full for they carried the bag for more than 250 father and son teams entered in the annual Pater et Filius golf tournament.

Golf Is Gaining

Golf is gaining in popularity with rapid strides in Canada.

According to a report filed recently, 292 golf clubs are flourishing in that country, representing in property and equipment more than $10,000,000.

In 1916, there were only 76 golf courses and this number increased to 218 in 1922. Since the first of the year the courses have increased 74, a rather surprising number.

Canada is still far behind the United States in the matter of clubs and the number of persons playing the popular Scotch sport. It is estimated that in Minneapolis alone close to 10,000 persons play golf regularly.

O'Leary Still Walks

Dan O'Leary, champion long distance hiker of the world, is eighty-two years old and celebrated the event by taking a 100-mile hike at Cincinnati as has been his custom on every recurring anniversary for the last half a century.

This must have been interesting—two old-timers like Jim Scott and George Foster in a 1 to 0 pitching duel. That is what happened at Los Angeles. Foster for Vernon, was the winner over Scott for San Francisco. Thus do the coasters develop young talent for future needs.

Paper Making in China.

The only modern type paper mill in China failed. Four special papers made by old methods are: Bark paper, from the paper mulberry; so-called rice paper, sliced from a pith; coarse paper from rice straw, and bamboo paper.

Noisiest Ball Fan

Baltimore boasts of the noisiest baseball rooter. Armed with an auto horn he invades the Oriole ball park and does his loudest to disconcert the visiting pitcher or batter at a critical moment. Recently he became so boisterous that the manager of the Buffalo team sent an official protest to President Toole of the International league. The executive sent word to his umpires to see that the auto horn was not rested atop the visiting players' dugout.

MANAGER PAT MORAN HAS MANY TWIRLERS

Red Pitchers Adept at Every Style of Delivery.

"We have one great asset in our pitching staff," says Pat Moran, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, "and that's different styles of deliveries. I don't ever remember seeing so many different methods of pitching in my whole career. A club that can send in pitchers of varying styles has a big advantage over teams whose pitchers seem to be made in the same mold.

"The champion Cubs had it over all competitors in this respect. Brown's delivery was utterly different from that of Reulbach, and Big Ed, in turn, threw shoots that had no likeness to those of Lundgren or Overall. Each of the four great right handers had his own method of delivery, his own set of curves, and not a particle of similarity between any two of them. Add to this layout the left-handed Pfeister, and the combination was too much for the other fellows.

"Our present staff shows wonderful variety. Rixey and Benton, both left-handers, have wholly differing styles of work. Donahue and Keck, who should both be great winners this season, employ opposite deliveries, Donahue sending them from up high, while Keck has an underhanded shoot that's a wonder. Couch's style hasn't the least resemblance to that of either Keck or Donahue, and Luque, again, doesn't pitch like any of the three other right-handers.

"We can give the hostile batters a flock of different stuff this summer, and can mix things up against them all the time. And I think that is going to help the good cause considerably."

Harvard Lost Three Star Athletes by Graduation

Harvard lost three star athletes this season by graduation: Vinton Chapin, football and track star; George Owen, hockey and baseball captain and football star; and Charles C. Buell, three years varsity quarterback.

Benton Doing Well

Rube Benton, southpaw pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, who experienced much difficulty in securing his reinstatement in the National league this spring, has finally found himself and is pitching the best ball of his career.

Some Ground for Belief.

A belief met with through all the south of France is that the position of a drowned body may be discovered by a floating loaf of bread. Possibly the only scientific basis is that the loaf is apt to be carried by a current of water just as a body is.

2 SHOWS A DAY AT EXPOSITION

The entertainment committee in charge of the entertainment for the Kingston Exposition have engaged Hanvey & Frances in a talking and singing act for the entire week of the Exposition which will be held from August 27 to September 1, inclusive. Hanvey & Frances are top liners and have appeared in the large theaters in this and foreign countries. This act will be put on both afternoon and evening, and is only one of several which will be on the entertainment program during the Exposition week.

Mr. Hanvey has been engaged to take charge of the entertainment for Exposition week and has already arranged for several first class acts.

The entertainment program this year will be given both afternoon and evening so that those who attend the Exposition in the afternoon will have a chance to see the entertainment.

NEW TRUSTEES DINE OLD ONES

Philip Elting Presides at Gathering of Ulster County Savings Institution Officials at Woodstock.

Monday evening the trustees and officers of the Ulster County Savings Institution enjoyed at the Ritz-Allen, Woodstock, at a full course dinner, with roast chicken as the piece de resistance, they being guests of John H. Saxe and John Hiltebrant recently elected trustees of the institution. Covers were laid for eighteen. At the dinner, Collector of the Port of New York Philip Elting, who is attorney for the bank, was the toastmaster and short talks were made by nearly everyone present. Among others present were William C. Shafer, president; Charles S. Wood, vice-president; Howard Chipp, David Burgevin, William R. Harrison, secretary; Joel Brink, Mayor Walter P. Crane, Vincent A. Gorman, James J. O'Connor, treasurer; John T. R. Hall, teller; Clyde K. Wood, bookkeeper; Edward T. Hillis, clerk. The party returned at an early hour.

SILIQUA BEGINS WESTERN N. Y. CIRCUIT WITH A WIN

Siliqua, 2-10¼, fast trotter owned by Percy Brink of Stone Ridge, won the 2:11 trot at the Monroe County Fair last Saturday, defeating the greatest trotter in western New York, Henry Toss, 2-10¼. The latter horse was at one time holder of the world's record for two-year-old horses. This was the first start in the great western New York Fair circuit for Siliqua. He has raced through the same circuit last season and was the only horse that was undefeated from the first meeting to the last.

Siliqua was in a $2,000 race at Endicott, N. Y., last week and in a wreck was distanced. This is the first time the Ulster County horse has been behind the money in two years. He will race at Caledonia, N. Y., this week in the 2:11 trot.

FRENCH NAMES IN LONDON

Their Influence Can Be Found in the British Capital Wherever One May Go.

The French influence in London names is evident wherever one goes. Charing Cross, which is the modern Londoner's "center of the world," where Kipling says one may meet the one he seeks if he but wait long enough, is an English corruption of a one-time French name.

When Edward I was bringing the body of his queen from the North, his retinue in their route to Westminster abbey deposited the bier at nightfall where they struck camp. At each resting place a cross was erected, it is recorded.

Throughout England there are now towns, villages and hamlets that bear the name of "cross." One can thus almost trace the course of the cortege. The last resting place they reached before they got to Westminster was "Chere Reine Croix" (Dear Queen Cross), now corrupted to "Charing Cross."

"Birdcage Walk," in St. James park, is an interesting example. Popular belief generally is that in medieval days they used to hang bird cages with songbirds in them from the boughs of trees that mark the walk. That is erroneous. "Birdcage Walk" is nothing more than a corruption of the French word "Bocage" (grove). And Birdcage Walk is indeed a pleasant grove, where lovers have been rambling since the Norman conquest.

LONDON'S WEEKLY REST DAY

Easy for Even the Blind and Deaf to Recognize the Sabbath in the Big Metropolis.

In no country in the world, writes Ward Muir in the London Graphic, is Sunday so different from the week days as in England, and this quite apart from religious observances. It sounds different and it smells different. A blind man could recognize the arrival of Sunday in London by the cessation of the traffic's roar and the increase of the tolling of church bells. While a blind man could tell Sunday by its silence, a deaf man could tell it by its smell. Muffins, maybe, are odorless, but sausages are appetizingly aromatic. Throughout the week it must be easy for any aviator flying over London's chimneys when breakfasts are in preparation, to sniff a scent of frying bacon. On a Sunday the scent would be that of sausages.

In enormous numbers of families the midday dinner is also a specialty of Sunday—and this, too, alters Sunday's odor. For some years I lived in a slum district, and it was noticeable that in the houses of the poor the only day on which noontime cooking occurred was Sunday. The master of the house carried his midday meal with him to his work on week days, but on Sundays he consumed steak and greens by his own fireside, and in no part of London does Sunday smell so different from week days as in the slums, for this reason.

A BUSY WEEK AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

The boys' division of the local Y. M. C. A. have planned a busy week for its members. The schedule follows:

Wednesday morning—Early Risers Club at 6.

Thursday—Over night hike to Snake Hill, leaving the "Y" at 6:15 that evening and returning Friday morning before noon. Boys who make the hike are requested to bring two blankets and a rubber covering if they have one and something to cook for breakfast. Boys who are working and desire to go on the hike may do so and special plans will be made to get them back to Kingston in time to go to work Friday morning.

Friday—The program as scheduled has been postponed. This includes the ball game with Camp Wallkill and the factory inspection. Some form of a memorial service in honor of President Harding will be held that day at the building.

Boys of the department are requested to watch the bulletin board and newspaper for further announcements.

Exhibition Dance at Point.

Roy Conklin of Beacon, will give an exhibition dance at the Kingston Point Casino Wednesday evening, August 8. Music will be furnished by New York Buddees Society orchestra.

"Friendly Fire" Loss.

W. C. A. INVITES WOMEN CAMPERS

Girls and women are now signing for the Y. W. C. A. camp to be held at Ideal Park for two weeks, beginning August 20. It will be necessary for those who wish to go to the camp to register at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters, No. 14 Henry street, on or before Saturday, August 11, in order to know just how many to prepare for at the camp. Girls from 12 to 16 years of age as well as older girls and women, will be welcomed, and there will be a member of the Y. W. C. A. board of directors at the camp all the time to act as chaperone.

Anyone wanting to know anything about the camp may telephone 1911, the headquarters. In fact, the Y. W. C. A. headquarters, which are now very attractive and homey, have become a valuable city asset as a bureau of information to out-of-town visitors, of whom there have already had many, as well as to Kingston people. The Y. W. C. A. is also meeting with marked success in its efforts to place people looking for rooms, especially girls and women alone, in good homes and boarding houses in town.

PUBLIC INSPECTS NEW RESTAURANT

The new restaurant of John J. McCabe, at 294 Wall street which was thrown open for inspection by the public on Monday, was visited by a large number of men and women, each and every one expressing the opinion that the restaurant was as fine and complete as it was possible to make one. The front with its sheet copper tops, extended sloping terra cotta roof, with window boxes of shrubbery, the small panes of glass encased in lead, in stained wood, and the mirror entrance makes the resturant a most attractive one. The many round and square tables, with immaculate linen covers, the cut glass, the china dishes and the silverware were favorably commented upon by the women, but the kitchen with its gas and electric equipments, the scores of kitchen utensils suspended so that they are handy for the cooks, the dishwashing arrangements and the many other things all called for admiration. The lighting arrangement is the very latest in that line, the lighting being of a subdued order from side-wall clusters. From the ceilings are suspended slow revolving electric fans which keep the air in circulation without making any perceptible breeze. The floor is covered with battleship deck linoleum. The restaurant will be open from 7 a. m. until midnight, with young women as waitresses during the day and men waiters in the evening. A specialty will be made of sea food and the cuisine will be of a high character. Edward J. Niese, for over a score of years connected in executive capacities with the famous Delmonico restaurants in New York city, has been engaged as manager of the restaurant by Mr. McCabe, and will have personal charge. He has engaged a French chef and an assistant chef, also special cooks and skilled waitresses, etc. He aims to make the service equal to the best in any restaurant in the larger cities.

Gerard W. Betz, the well known architect, designed the plans for the elaborate front following ideas formed by Mr. McCabe, who has for several months visited high class restaurants and places where sea food is specialized in not only in New York but other cities. The front was erected by L. Barth & Son of this city, who also furnished the kitchen equipment throughout, the work having been under the personal supervision of Max L. Reben, manager of the local plant. The electric work was done by the Gruberg Electric Co., of this city and is on a most extensive scale. The large kitchen which has been installed on sanitary lines throughout, will be open for inspection by patrons at all times.

Over the 'Phone

By CORONA REMINGTON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Daddy, if John Harrison asks—asks you for me, what'll you say?"

"What do you want me to say, daughter?"

"Oh, I—I think he's wonderful. I love him most to death, but he doesn't know it."

"I suspect he does, Myrtle," laughed Wilton. "Often you girls think you fool us when you don't. We're not altogether as stupid as we look, and sometimes you're not as clever as you think you are. So it happens once in a while that the only folks that are getting fooled are those attempting the deception."

"Oh, daddy, you're teasing now. Of course he knows I like him heaps and oceans, but I'm perfectly certain he doesn't know I love him enough to marry him."

"Are you certain yourself that you do?"

"Oh, absolutely. I knew it the first second I ever saw him, and I've been knowing it every second since—every single one."

"Mercy on us. Case of love at first sight, eh? Well, I never thought of him as a possible son, so I haven't paid much attention to him. Is he doing well in business? He's with the Sunset City Coal people, I believe."

"Yes, but he wants to get to be vice-president of something big. He's worked there nine years and they're awfully stingy with their promotions."

"Maybe it's his fault. I'll investigate and tell you more about it afterward."

"I don't care whom you blame, but you mustn't put it on him. It's not his fault and he can't help it that he's still on a salary instead of being a big stockholder, as he deserves to be."

"There, there, daughter; don't get upset about it. I dare say you're right."

A few days later Mr. Wilson had a casual talk with a friend at the club, and the friend was blissfully unconscious of the fact that he was being put through the third degree. So much for Wilton's law training. As strangers are prone to do, he made inquiry about a number of the business houses in town, and among them the Sunset City Coal company. He asked no more questions about it and showed no more interest in it than he did in the others. Nor was the well-dressed young man in the chair opposite him the only one who unknowingly testified for or against John Harrison that day.

As it happened, Mr. Wilton had made his investigations just in time, for that very evening Harrison, flushed and stammering, sat on the edge of a chair in the library and tried to state his case.

"I know what you want to say," smiled Wilton kindly, his gray eyes sparkling with amusement. "I had it to do once myself, and I haven't forgotten it yet. But the old man did not help me out—not a bit of it. Well, to get down to business. You love her, of course; no use asking fool questions. Can you support her?"

"N-not as I would like to. That is, just yet—but I can make her comfortable."

"Hmmm, suppose you give me 24 hours to think it over?"

"All right, sir. I don't know how I'll ever live through the suspense, but I guess I'll have to try."

Early the next day Mr. Wilton picked up the telephone and gave a number.

"Is this Mr. Harrison?" he asked.

"Yes."

"John Wilton speaking. Just wanted to say one thing; you seem to be a pretty fine fellow and I admire you, and all that, but you can't marry Myrtle until you get a little further up the business ladder. If you don't deserve a promotion you're not worthy of my daughter. If you do you ought to get it, and you ought to have backbone enough to go after it. I haven't lived here long enough to know the members of your firm, but whoever's over you needs a good stiff talking to. If he's an unprogressive old mossback and you can't do anything with him, get out; but I believe you've got it in you to bring him around. And, remember one thing—no promotion, no wedding. And, remember another thing, young man, it's not the money side of it that bothers me. Myrtle'll have $200,000 in her own name when she's of age. It's not that, it's the backbone. Good-by."

Wilton hung up the receiver and things happened pretty swiftly after that. Just before luncheon young Harrison came tearing into his office like a baby tornado.

"They've promised to make me vice-president. May I marry her now?"

"No. Not right now. I advise you to wait a few minutes anyhow."

"Oh, you know what I mean. May I marry her?"

"Yes, if she's willing."

"I'm absolutely the happiest man in America."

"Superlatives," laughed Wilton.

"The worst is, the very worst is," Harrison went on. "I can't get out to tell Myrtle until this evening. The old man gets furious if I'm five minutes late coming back from lunch. He was never a minute late in his whole life."

"It will keep and you'll enjoy the anticipation."

"Poor consolation, but I've got to put up with it. You won't tell Myrtle, will you?"

"Not I. But why don't you phone her?"

"Phones are such unsatisfactory things."

"Not always. I've found them very useful on some occasions. In fact, even more effective than a personal visit," laughed Wilton. "But tell me how you broke the news."

"I didn't. You did. It's the biggest joke. It was dad you were talking to over the 'phone this morning and not me!"

"Your father!"

"Sure. He's the whole works up at the Sunset City Coal. Didn't you know it? The 'phone on my desk is an extension of his, and I listened in to part of the conversation. Don't know what made me do it, but I could hardly sit still when he sauntered into my cubby-hole of an office and magnanimously offered me the position of vice-president. But maybe I didn't walk the floor before he came in! It seemed to me six lifetimes, instead of a little less than an hour."

"Time is not a thing of minutes or hours or days. It's a matter of events," said the older man.

"I never realized it as thoroughly as I did today," laughed Harrison, rising.

After he had left, Wilton lit a cigar, put his feet upon the desk and indulged in a prolonged chuckle.

"I thought that would bring the old chap around," he laughed to himself. "And the boy doesn't suspect a thing. Wonder whether he heard me tell him Myrtle's coming in for $200,000 of her mother's money when she's twenty-one. Hope not, anyhow."

MADE SCHOLAR OF IDLER

Short Talk That Changed the Whole Current of Youthful Englishman's Life.

A young man, twenty years old, sat with tears in his eyes listening to what was said at the funeral of his brother, with whom he had many a time enjoyed pranks and escapades. They had been a daring couple, and had united with other young men in real adventures. Now the brother had died, and the younger one, Samuel Drew, was left. The words that he heard made a deep impression on him, and for the first time in his career he began to think life a really great matter. His father had been an ignorant man who always worked for others on farms in the south of England. At first the boy had played about in the fields and watched his father work. Then there had come a time when he had gained strength enough to work himself, not at the hard farm work, but on the bench of a shoemaker.

"It will do you no good to argue with Sam Drew," the men said. "He has an answer for all that you can say. He does naught all day but think."

In fact, the young man had a quick tongue and a repartee for anyone. He had a quick mind, but an untrained mind. With this advantage to start with he set about self-training. He had never been able to go to school, but he had picked up the ability to read and write. Now he began to read, and to think about what he read. He joined the church and soon became a preacher. Fourteen years after his brother's death Samuel Drew wrote a book in which he set forth his ideas on religion and the spiritual life. Crude as it was, the book was an honest expression of thought. It won praise for its writer. Stimulated by this he wrote other books, all along the most serious lines. Before his death at the age of sixty-eight he had written a shelf-full of books, including histories, biography, essays, religious discussions and a great work in which he set forward his belief in the immortality of the soul. He became an editor, and the director of a publishing house, and was honored by one of the best of the British universities. When he died in 1833 he was recognized as one of the leading English thinkers. It had paid the young shoemaker to listen to a really serious talk.

Bells of History.

Man made bells of clay before he had taught himself the art of writing. His first efforts were rather shapeless clay vessels which gave off a pleasing resonance when struck. Savages wear bells as some of their chief ornaments. The early Israelites are mentioned by Moses, Isaiah and Zacharian as using bells on the yokes of their horses, as decorations on the anklets worn by the women, and in the temples. The sound of a bell summoned the Roman citizens to temple or forum. The Italian bishop, Paulinus of Nola, first used bells in Christian worship and about the year 600 A. D. the pope decreed that there should be a bell in every Roman Catholic church tower. The curfew bell, the angelus bell and the passing bell have become a part of history and tradition. Many bells, like the famous one of St. Mark's in Venice, were alarums to be rung only in time of danger.

Indian Pipe of Peace.

The calumet, the "pipe of peace" of the American Indians, was used on all ceremonial occasions, but especially when treaties of peace were being ratified. Each warrior took a solemn puff from the pipe as it was passed around the circle. Native tobacco, with which willow bark or sumac leaves were mixed, was smoked. The bowl of the pipe was made of white stone in the East and Southeast. In the West it was made of a red clay obtained from the famous pipestone quarry of Minnesota, mentioned in Longfellow's "Hiawatha". The pipe had a very long stem, made sometimes of wood, sometimes of reed. Feathers, porcupine quills and women's hair were used as decorations on the stem. The name "calumet" originated with the French-Canadians.

Mad-Cap Dance.

The regular weekly dance at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall this evening will be enlivened by a "mad-cap" dance. Special favors will be given. This is the first of a series of special dances to be run during this month.

EARLY PLOWING FOR WHEAT PROVES BEST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Although continuance of the present acreage of wheat in New York state, in view of present price conditions, may not seem desirable, farmers who do expect to grow wheat in 1924 are urged by the state agricultural college here to plow the land as early as harvesting and labor conditions will permit.

They say that early plowing accomplishes several things. In the first place, it makes a better seedbed, and wheat produces best yields when planted in a deep firm seedbed with a mellow surface. When plowing is done early, to a depth of about six inches, the soil can settle and form naturally a firm seedbed. The soft loose soil takes up and holds much water under normal rainfall conditions.

Growth of weeds should be prevented after plowing, however, as these will take up both water and plant-food material needed by the crop. Early plowing permits the organic matter to rot and yield up its plant-food materials. Proper stirring of the surface will complete preparation of the seedbed.

Fertilization should have careful attention. Wheat may follow sweet or red clover and alsike, or a mixture of these. These, on rotting, will supply considerable nitrogen and a good deal of potash, together with some readily available phosphoric acid. After clover, or with manure, 200 pounds to the acre of sixteen per cent acid phosphate will give good results, when other conditions are reasonably favorable.

A larger application, however, is desirable to take care of the clover crop which follows. Fall fertilizer prices are not known, but the low price of wheat will hardly warrant the expectation that the 1924 crop will pay for ammonia or potash purchased as the regular mixed fertilizer. Most New York wheat was grown at a decided loss in 1923.

Where one expects to grow wheat, then, the college advises:

First, plow early.

Second, turn under organic matter, or use manure.

Third, apply acid phosphate 200 pounds to the acre, and more for clover and timothy.

Fourth, use a good clean high yielding seed adapted to soil and climate.

Car Shortage Becomes Surplus Despite Greatest Freight Traffic in History

DURING the first six months of this year the railroads hauled the largest amount of freight ever carried during any six months in the history of America.

And despite this tremendous traffic, which in June resulted in the greatest ever carried in any one month, the freight car shortage has been turned into a surplus of more than 84,000 cars.

These facts are available following a report of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association on the progress of the railroads since 1922 to increase their facilities and improve transportation capacity and performance.

The report shows:

1. In the first six months of 1923 the railroads hauled the largest traffic of any six months in their history.

2. In June, they hauled the largest traffic ever carried in any one month.

3. For the week ending June 30th they loaded 1,021,770 cars, the largest car loading on record.

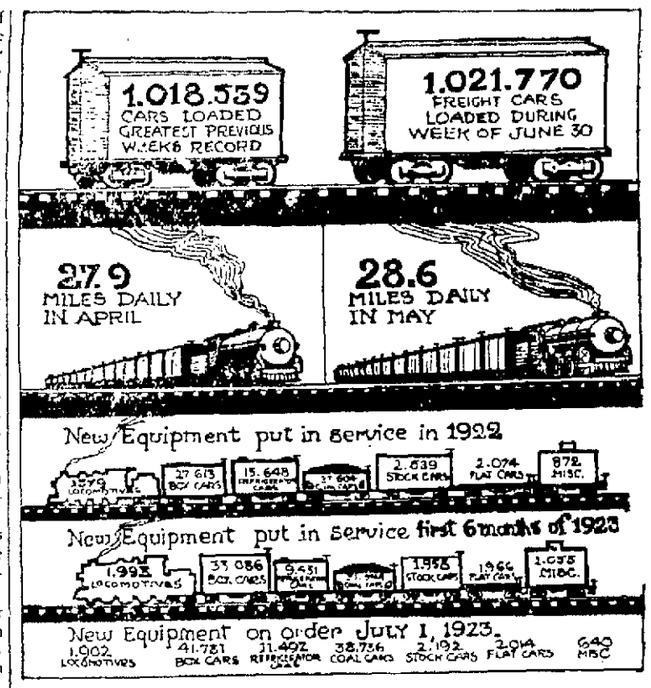
4. In the first six months of this year 79,240 new freight cars were put into service and 1,993 new locomotives.

5. The total number of bad order freight cars has been reduced from 216,011, or 9.5 per cent., on January 1, to 190,411, or 8.4 per cent., on July 1.

6. Bad order locomotives have been reduced from a total of 15,549 or 24.1 per cent., on January 1, to 11,450, or 18 per cent., on July 1, when there were the greatest number of serviceable locomotives on record.

7. The number of repaired locomotives and cars turned out of railroad shops per month has far exceeded the performance of previous years. In the first six months of this year an average of more than 38,000 repaired locomotives were turned out each month against only about 21,000 for the first six months of 1922. In June over 1,200,000 freight cars passed in and out of the railroad repair shops of the country.

8. The average loading per car was increased from 27.3 tons in April to 28 tons in May.



9. The average daily movement of all freight cars has been increased from 27.9 miles in April to 28.6 miles in May.

10. The reserve bituminous coal stocks of the railroads have been increased from 6,756,886 tons on January 1 to 10,667,357 tons on July 1.

The programme adopted by the roads for the movement of coal calls for average loadings raised to [illegible] tons per car. In May of this year the average was 28, an increase of a [illegible] of a ton over April.

The plan to increase the average miles per car per day to 30 miles resulted in 28 3/5ths miles in May, an increase of 5 9/10ths miles over May of last year, and of 7/10ths of a mile over April this year.

TEN YEARS AGO—AND NOW

In January, 1923, the average wholesale price of all commodities was 56 per cent. higher than in 1913.

The average cost of living in 32 cities was 69 per cent. higher.

Railroad operating expenses were 111 per cent. and taxes 157 per cent. higher.

The average monthly wage of railroad employees was 119 per cent higher.

The average freight rate was 50 per cent. and the average passenger rate 55 per cent. higher.

Every increase of one mile in the average movement of all freight cars produces the same increase in capacity that 100,000 new freight cars would provide, moving one mile a day less.

The railroads have therefore increased their capacity by 70,000 cars, without additional investment.

DESTROY 1922 GAME LAW COPIES

New and Important Amendments to Conservation Law Make 1923 Issue Only Reliable One.

County, city and town clerks have received a supply of the 1923 syllabus from the state of New York Conservation Commission, Albany, which contains in brief form, the conservation laws as amended to date.

The commission believes that it is advisable that all of the old copies persons have, be destroyed as the syllabus they now have does not contain the amendments passed at the last session of the legislature. The commission also instructs authorities that when they issue hunting licenses they furnish each applicant a 1923 syllabus. The commission deems it very important that such action be taken so as to avoid misleading persons as to the provisions of the Conservation Laws giving protection to fish and game, which might happen if they followed the 1922 syllabus.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE BIG LEAGUES

The Reds will have two strikes on them for the remainder of the season as a result of dropping a double-header to the Giants, 4 to 2 and 5 to 4, giving the champions a 6½ game lead. It was the fourth straight for the Giants over the Reds.

The Athletics won their first game in thirteen starts by clubbing four White Sox pitchers for 22 hits. The score was 14 to 4.

Falling upon Shocker in the eighth as a mallet falls upon a nailhead, the Yanks drove home four runs and beat the Browns, 5 to 3.

Smith staved off the Senator's rush in the final inning and pitched the Indians to a 5 to 2 decision.

Five-thumbed fielding by the Pirates' defense staked the Phillies to a long lead in the early innings and they managed to last to the wire, 6 to 4.

Piercy had slight edge on Pillette in a pitchers' battle and the Red Sox topped the Tigers, 2 to 1, Fewster's infield hit furnishing the winning run in the fifth.

Aided by the circumspect pitching of Ruether, the Dodgers clubbed out a 5 to 1 decision over the Cubs, Dumovich departing from the scene by request.

CIVIL WAR GAVE RED CROSS

How Fredericksburg Inspired Clara Barton With Idea for the Famous Organization.

The Civil war had scarcely started when Clara Barton voluntarily abandoned her business of teaching school in a New Jersey town and enlisted as a nurse in the hospital of the Union army. From the outset she insisted upon doing duty at the front. She was especially interested in one of the regiments from New Jersey, and before the men in that command went into action she ministered to them in a way that won their gratitude. An incident which she never forgot occurred after the battle of Fredericksburg, say the records. Miss Barton received word that she was wanted at the Lincoln hospital. This is her own simple story of what occurred there:

"As I entered the ward 70 men saluted me, standing such as could, others rising feebly in their beds. Every man had left his blood upon the battlefield of Fredericksburg. My hand dressed every wound—many of them in the first terrible moments of agony!"

That incident is said to have been the origin of the Red Cross, which was organized in 1882, and with which the name of Clara Barton is inseparably linked. She was the founder of the Red Cross and its first president.

Brazil Ships Bulk of Coffee.

Three-fourths of the world's coffee is grown in Brazil. Europe and North America use nearly four-fifths of all the coffee produced. The world consumption now amounts to something like 3,000,000,000 pounds a year. Holland is the greatest coffee-drinking nation on the globe. It uses more than fifteen pounds per capita annually, while the people of the United States use about thirteen pounds.
